The Right Answer.
Lady Astor Returns.
American English.
British Socialism.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE answer by President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg to the Franco-British plan for a naval agreement notifies Europeans, none too soon, that this is an independent country, not a British or French dominion.

It is refreshing and reassuring to read in the plainest kind of English, that the United States "cannot consent to proposals which would leave the door wide open to unlimited building of certain types of ships of a highly efficient combatant value, (to France and England), and would impose restrictions only on those types peculiarly suitable to American needs."

THIS country is indebted to Universal Service for publishing the real facts in regard to the French-British secret treaty and to President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg for sending in exactly the right answer to nations that were recently begging us to save them from destruction—when they had "their backs to the wall," as Haig put it.

THIS nation should now build whatever it NEEDS. Cruisers, submarines and airplanes, especially the last two.

"We have the money," as Britain used to say, and should outbuild France and Britain combined.

LADY ASTOR, born in Virginia, busy now in the House of Commons, returns to the United States saying, "The women of the world are organizing for peace." They have always been organizing for peace, and manufacturing sons for war.

AMERICAN "talking movies," seen and heard in England, arouse enthusiasm and prediction that the silent picture is doomed.

British critics suggest that American actors should "cultivate Oxford accent." They don't like our brand of English.

Perhaps talking movies will teach them to like the American language, just as they have been taught by our silent movies to like American clothes and some other things.

THE British premier, Baldwin, refuses to accept tariff change as the issue in the coming election. Socialism is the REAL issue, he says.

Socialism, in his opinion, is opposed to Constitutionalism and "individualism," which means presumably the desire and right of the individual to get what he can and keep it in the good old way.

Great is the difference, as regards the power of "Radicalism" in Britain and in the United States. With us, Socialism is an interesting theory, like the fourth dimension or the squaring of the circle.

Only Socialists take Socialism seriously here. And the ablest of the American Socialists, Victor Berger, a really educated man, would probably tell you that to raise wages 20 per cent is to reduce socialism 20 per cent.

ON WEDNESDAY work was stopped for an hour everywhere in Palestine, among Jewish workers, as a protest against police interference at the Wailing Wall on Yom Kippur.

Shops were closed, traffic stopped in Jerusalem, while 10,000 listened to addresses of denunciation by rabbis.

The Wailing Wall, at which Jews periodically express their grief, belongs to the Arabs, under the League of Nations settlement. The Jews demand that it be turned over to them.

A discussion affecting all the holy places in Jerusalem may result.

THE interest rates paid by business men in America continue higher than anywhere in the world, except in Chinese shops.

In Wall Street, call money yesterday cost 8 per cent. Business men borrowing on time paid 7¾ per cent.

High finance is doing what it can to kill the golden goose, but probably will be satisfied if it can strip all the fat off that goose before it dies.

It should be some one's business to remind national banks that usury is illegal, as well as immoral.

President Coolidge might choose to do it.

YANKS 'IN;' CARDINALS NEED 1

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—It was only 12 hours ago that officials of the New York Baseball Club were hastening hither and thither, as it were or maybe was, warning a distrait populace that it simply was no use asking them again. They had no reserved seats left for the ball game between the Giants and Cardinals tomorrow and, if everybody would just be patient and wait a little longer, they could guarantee to have even less than that.

All I can say now is that things have come to a parlous state when a man just knows that he won't sleep a minute more than 12 hours tonight, worrying about what the holders of these tickets might be able to use them for, if the Cardinals beat the Braves again this afternoon. I will be equally at a loss to fathom this problem even if the Cards don't beat the Braves

Crash Car Driven by Coolidge

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—Coroner James J. Corrigan concluded today his "preliminary investigation" of the automobile accident Thursday in which John Coolidge was involved. He did so by interviewing Wilfred Veno, a victim of the accident, at New Haven Hospital.

Veno, driver of a car alleged to have been struck by one belonging to Gov. John H. Trumbull and driven by the President's son, still was regarded as in a serious condition today, although it was believed he would live. His mother, Mrs. Mary Veno, who was his passenger, will be discharged from the hospital in a few days, it was said.

Corrigan questioned young Coolidge at the latter's New Haven Railroad office. He would not reveal the results of his investigation, the only one under way. If Veno lives, Corrigan's finding will not be issued. Tardy filing of a policeman's report on the accident revealed that Coolidge was driver of the Governor's car and that it was the big sedan that struck Veno's light touring car on an intersection.

BOY'S SKULL FRACTURED WHEN RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Ewald Geiger, 7, of 1045 Lapish road, was reported in serious condition in St. John's Hospital today suffering from a fractured skull received when he was hit by an auto at Brighton road and Termon avenue. The driver, Albert McKnight, 38, of 159 Pius street, notified police of the accident.

BEAUFORT STREET HOME AFIRE, FLUE BLAMED

Damage estimated at $300 was done to the home of Lawrence Brundage, 2418 Beaufort street, last night, when a defective flue ignited the roof of the dwelling.

DEAD MAN SOUGHT REVENGE

Antonio Landolina, 25, 203 Mayflower street, was out to avenge the death of his uncle, Nicasio Landolina, 74, shot down in his flower garden on July 24, when he fell before a death hail of bullets from guns in the hands of the men he sought, police know today. Above are the six suspects being held by police. They are Frank Tuccio, 33, Bellaire, O.; Larry Anendola, 28, Martins Ferry, O.; Patsy Dinello, 26, 1504 Cliff street; Antonio Maso, 35, and Patsy Manague, 22, Carnegie, and Mike Acquaro, 33, 14 Mt. Oliver street. The killers hid in the alleyway shown above and surprised their victim with a broadside of death as he stood at the spot designated, then fled back through the alleyway.

ART DEALERS LAUD GRAVURE

Art dealers and leading photographers of Pittsburgh joined artists, educators and printing experts in praise of the new color gravure of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, which will make its first appearance to the public tomorrow. They were given a pre-viewing of the new section yesterday.

Terming it "striking, stimulating, faithful in its reproduction of paintings and colored pictures," the natural color section met favor from these—qualified to be the most critical of the Color printing innovation.

They said:

AUGUST WUNDERLEY, JR., art dealer—"Certainly a pleasant innovation. I am familiar with Kuhler's painting of the steel mill and find the reproduction almost unbelievably accurate and interesting. I'm for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's color gravure."

WILL J. HYETT, art dealer—"The natural color gravure is a fine advance in newspaper art—one that gives opportunity to display the color and handling of the finer things."

RALPH W. JOHNSTON, photographer—"Excellent. Starting a new epoch in color. It amazes me to find that a newspaper can print such colors when just a few years ago, comparatively, wood cuts were the only illustrations."

J. J. FLAHERTY, photographer—"The color pictures form a very progressive idea. It's bound to catch on and add much more interest to the already developed interest in pictures."

CARL BERNSTON, photographer—"It's a pippin! The color photographs reproduced are marvelous. They are the most artistic I have ever seen. The colors are actually there and faithful to the originals."

O. C. HENRY, photographer—"I'm glad to see a Pittsburgh paper so awake to the value of colors in pictures. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is really competing with the newspapers in our biggest cities, and its a good sign for Pittsburgh."

JEROME CHIRCOSTA, photographer—"The gravure is a fine thing, the latest development in pictures and most interesting. Color's the thing."

CHARLES A. BOWMAN, photographer—"A credit to Pittsburgh, the gravure is the nicest piece of work I've ever seen."

GEORGE SAUTTER, photographer—"It's certainly fine. The development of pictures in colors marks a new step forward."

D. A. ROSSER, photographer—"There's nothing finer than color pictures when they are well done, and these in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's color gravure are well done."

Gas Tank Pirates Find Magistrate "Initiated"

Two 16-year-old boys were arraigned before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today, charged with draining gasoline tanks of autos parked on the city lot near Point Bridge.

"I know," Brandon revealed, "just how that feels. My car was drained recently."

The boys were held for court.

2 HURT IN TRAIN'S LEAP

Two men were injured and scores of passengers were badly shaken up when Train No. 912, night passenger train from Buffalo on the Allegheny Valley division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, derailed at the Monarch Coal Tipple, north of Red Bank, this morning.

The engineer, F. E. Botterer, 309 College avenue, Oakmont, and J. A. Sallade, fireman, of Oil City, were injured. They were taken to a hospital in Kittanning suffering from shock.

The locomotive upset and crashed crosswise on the track. Two express cars also toppled over on their sides. A combined baggage and mail car and a combined baggage and passenger coach also were derailed. Two sleeping cars and a coach remained on the track.

Two wrecking trains were rushed to the scene.

The cause of the accident has not been determined, Pennsylvania Railroad officials said.

"Hoover!" Coolidge Plea

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—President Coolidge, in a message read at the Republican state convention here, said that the country needed a continuation of the administration of public affairs in accordance with the principles which have guided the achievements of the Republican party.

"This need," the President wrote, "should be fulfilled by beginning the next political year under the tried and experienced leadership of Frank G. Allen and Benjamin Loring Young in our commonwealth and of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis in our nation."

Allen, now lieutenant governor, was named at the primary on September 18 as the Republican candidate for Governor and Young for United States Senator.

BLANCHE SATCHEL

Miss Blanche Satchel today is not Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's fiancee. She says so, herself, and takes time off from her musical show, on Broadway, to do it. It seems now as though it has just been a "rumor," but Miss Satchel admitted—mind you!—that she has met the colonel.

Turn Clock Back Before Going to Bed Tonight

PITTSBURGH will go back to eastern standard time at 2 a. m., Sunday morning. Daylight saving will officially end in the Pittsburgh district at that hour and the clocks throughout the district will be turned back an hour or ahead 11 hours, the latter being much better for the time pieces, jewelers say.

Railroads will announce today their new fall chedule, many changes in trains entering and leaving the city having been brought about by the change in time. It is expected that less confusion will result from changing the clocks at the early hour than if the return to standard time were made at any other time. All county courts will open Monday at 9:30, eastern standard time.

KLINE GIVES RECORDS FOR GRAFT PROBE

When the county grand jury, which is listening to charges that the city's police and racketeers have formed a mutual cooperation society, resumes operations Monday, its attention probably will be called to a searching study of Mayor Kline's police courts.

This much was indicated today when District Attorney Gardner let it be known that he and his aides are studying the city court records which Mayor Kline had Magistrate John J. Orie turn over to him yesterday. These records include the disposition of slot machine cases and the impression exists that Gardner will tell the grand jury whether the slot machine proprietors were punished sufficiently—whether they should have been held for court, as they were not, or whether [illegible] should have been fined, as most recent offenders were.

The grand jury was not in session today, but the county detectives were active with a batch of subpenas for witnesses who will be brought in Monday and subsequent days, witnesses who are expected to know something, pr or con, of Alderman John J. Verona's charges that collusion exists between the underworld and police.

Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, twice a witness before the grand jury, yesterday held Inspector Joseph A. Elsner, of the Penn Avenue Police District, for court in $1,000 bail, charged with surety of the peace. The charge was made by John Burkowski, known as Jack Burke, who, it is claimed, accused

Merchants Probe Bus Fares

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

In undertaking the study of Pittsburgh's transit situation the Allied Boards of Trade will perform a great public service for the city. The investigation will include service and fares on both the street car and bus line. A committee will be appointed by George P. Kountz, president of the organization, to survey every phase of the transportation problem and to recommend the action to be taken to safeguard the interests of the citizens.

The Allied Boards of Trade are blazing a trail which should be followed by other civic organizations. The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce should have taken similar steps where the 25-cent bus fare and street car service is concerned. With its great resources it could be a tremendous influence for the public good, but it has remained in the background. It has allowed another organization with a smaller membership and less financial backing to lead the way in attempting to secure the kind of transportation that Pittsburgh should have.

The injustice of the 25-cent bus fare, which has been brought to the attention of the public by The Sun-Telegraph, will be one angle of the transit situation which the Allied Board of Trade will consider. But other important factors in the relations of the Pittsburgh Railways Company with the general public will be investigated.

Pittsburgh has been complacent about abuses such as the excessive bus fare too long. It needs such public-spirited organizations as the Allied Boards of Trade. It needs civic bodies which will not allow themselves to be dominated by a few large corporations. It needs organizations which are interested in the fair treatment of bus and street car riders.

HARD COAL DISTRICT POLL FAVORS SMITH

Schuylkill county, sixth county of Pennsylvania, shelters many voters with inclinations for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, judging from the first returns from that county in the straw vote canvass of Pennsylvania conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The first substantial quantity of ballots received from that county in the anthracite belt give Smith some advantage over Herbert Hoover. Experience with other counties in the poll, however, has shown that first returns are not always a reliable index of the final outcome.

Schuykill county has been the battleground of bitter factional warfare in past years. A state political figure, formerly auditor general and state treasurer, led a successful revolt against the organization to be elected district attorney.

This intense political rivalry may account for any sort of affiliation in a presidential year. It is admitted in political circles that much Smith sentiment exists in Schuykill county.

The latest totals of the Pennsylvania poll, conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, are: Hoover 32,625, including 25,572 men and 7,053 women; Smith 21,983, including 16,571 men and 5,412 women.

This vote in 1924 was divided as follows: Coolidge 38,019, including 29,644 men and 8,375 women; Davis 5,788, including 4,827 men and 961 women; La Follette 3,524; not voting 7,279.

HOOVER REPUDIATES RELIGIOUS ATTACK

Workmen Rush Job :-: Hammers Clatter On "Glory Barn" :-: Services Uninterrupted

IT WILL BE FINISHED SOON

LONG CAMPAIGN AHEAD

Out of confusion in West Carson street there grows a great auditorium, the new "Glory Barn" replacing that which was in McKeesport. Mr. John W. Sproul will have the structure finished for a long, evangelistic campaign.

WORKMEN UNDER 'FORCED DRAFT'

IN ALL HASTE

Hammers rap constantly and at the same time there goes on the religious work within the incomplete structure. Each night and each afternoon there flock hundreds to the "Glory Barn" for spiritual comfort and physical healing. Wondrous are the tales recited of those cured of afflictions of years' suffering.

GREAT AUDITORIUM-TO-BE

LARGE BUILDINGS

When it is completed, the "Glory Barn" will be one of the largest auditoriums in this area, capable of accommodating more than 20,000 people. The workmen on the building are working as rapidly as humanly possible to complete the structure. Here is the interior.

HOOVER SPURNS LETTER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover has spoken out for the first time since the delivery of his acceptance speech upon the injection of the religious issue in the presidential campaign.

Vehemently repudiating a letter, purportedly from the headquarters of Mrs. Willie W. Caldwel, Republican national committeewoman from Virgina, which included a plea to American women to save the nation from being 'Romanized," Mr. Hoover late last night declared that, whether authentic or a forgery, the communication did violence to every instinct that he possesses.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

"Such an attitude," he said in a prepared statement, "is entirely opposed to every principle of the Republican party. I made my position clear in my acceptance speech when I said:

"'In this land, dedicated to tolerance, we still find outbreaks of intolerance. I come of Quaker stock. My ancestors were persecuted for their beliefs. Here they sought and found religious freedom. By blood and conviction I stand for religious tolerance, both in act and in spirit. The glory of our American ideals is the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.'

"I meant that then, and I mean it now."

The letter, described as a "form letter," was brought to light by the Washington Post, which in a copyrighted story today said it had received it from Mrs. Clara Lyon, of Virginia Highlands, Va., to whom it had been sent under the mistaken assumption that she had accepted the post of vice chairman of a Republican precinct committee.

DENIES QUOTATIONS

Mrs. Caldwell was interviewed by the Post by telephone at her home in Roanoke, Va., and the Post quoted her as saying that such a letter had been distributed by her headquarters, but that she did not believe it had contained the words quoted from it. As given to the Post by Mrs Lyon, it was written on stationery of the Republican National Committee and contained Mrs. Caldwell's rubber stamp signature.

LADY ASTOR SAYS WOMEN MAY BREAK "SOLID SOUTH"

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Lady Astor of the British Parliament, back for a visit to her native land, expresses the opinion that the advance by women in politics may break the Solid South in the Presidential election for the first time.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the women's vote split the Solid South," she said as she arrived with her daughter, Phyllis, on the Aquitania yesterday. "I should say the present election in America is going to be influenced strongly by what the women think.

"As for myself," she said, "I do not believe in stand-patism in politics. I have never accepted the tenet, 'My country, right or wrong; my party, right or wrong.' I always reserve the right to change. The world needs independent voters."

As to politics and religion, Lady Astor said:

"I believe in putting religion into politics, but not politics into religion."

Asked if the married women of England would vote as their husbands voted, Lady Astor, who was Nancy Langhorne of Virginia before she married Viscount Astor in 1906, answered:

"Women do not vote as do their husbands. That is one of the delusions men have got and which they must get over. I can say, however, that many men vote as do their wives."

She praised the Kellogg peace pact and said that if the countries signing it were really honest the plan would be a definite step toward world peace.

GARDNER GIVEN POLICE BOOKS

the police officer of beating him several times.

Three of the four witnesses questioned at Friday afternoon's session of the grand jury had been fined by Magistrate Orie last week on charges of possessing slot machines. The fourth witness was H. Rea Garber, critic of District Attorney Gardner and county chairman of the Prohibition party.

Five other witnesses subpenaed to appear were dismissed after, beginning at 3 p. m., Mr. Gardner had questioned Garber for an hour. While all matters before the grand jury are secret, it was presumed Garber was asked why he did not believe Mr. Gardner qualified to conduct the present investigation.

QUIZZED BY JURY

W. S. Turner, 900 James street, North Side, followed Garber into the grand jury room, staying for 20 minutes. He was followed by E. A. Quinn, of 106 East Ohio street, North Side. Next came A. M. Deitz, 111 West General Robinson street, who stayed in 10 minutes, after which Quinn was recalled for the same length of time. All were before Magistrate Orie last week.

In the meantime James ("Weiner") Clark, formerly half owner of the Diamond Cafe, Sam Johnson, 1315 Carson street; William Falbaum, 1219 Carson street, and Stanley Cynba, 1705 Carson street, subpenaed early Friday, waited in an ante-room. At 4 p. m., after Garber and Turner had testified, District Attorney Gardner dismissed them until Monday at 9 a. m.

While the list of witnesses called to date indicates that Mr. Gardner is stressing the operation of slot machines, he insisted to newspaper men that "all phases of vice and crime, including liquor, will be investigated."

The routine work of the grand jury was completed Friday. Beginning Monday its full attention will be devoted to delving into alleged general conditions of vice and crime throughout Pittsburgh. Charges of Alderman Verona, which culminated in his being dismissed as a police magistrate by Mayor Charles H. Kline, precipitated the investigation which, however, will cover "all factions" in local politics, according to Gardner.

"SOCIETY BAR" RAIDED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Federal agents reported today that they had raided an alleged "society bar" at Bryn Mawr, a fashionable suburban community, and that a score of smartly attired men and women fled from the place upon their appearance.

The alleged bar was said to have been discovered in the Penn Hotel, near the grounds where the Bryn Mawr horse show is in progress.

The raiders said they seized 14 half barrels of beer, several quarts of whisky and some alcohol.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure is the dominating influence over the weather throughout the Mississippi Valley states and eastward to the coast. The center of the disturbance is over Missouri and Arkansas; lowest barometer, 29.88, at Little Rock. The weather is generally cloudy throughout the eastern half of the country, and rain is falling in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, and along the Atlantic coastf rom Norfolk to Philadelphia. The rains during the last 24 hours were limited to Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, the Middle Atlantic Coast states and at a few other widely scattered places. The rainfall in Indiana and Illinois was beneficial, but hardly sufficient to break the severe drouth prevailing there.

The temperature changes were slight, but generally toward rising. There were no frosts reported, and the temperature is abov freezing in the Northwest.

River Conditions.

There was no rain over the river basins, consequently no change occurred in the rivers. They arep ractically stationary at low stages. Stage at Pittsburgh is 9.8 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.3, and Dam No. 6, 7.0 feet. The dams are up.

AMATEUR'S TIP TRAPS CARNES

International News Service.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 29.—The capture and arrest here late yesterday of Clinton S. Carnes, wanted in Atlanta, Ga., on charges of having embezzled $1,000,000 from funds of the Southern Baptist Home Mission board, was due to the work of an amateur detective, it was learned today.

The embryo sleuth, whose name was withheld, had read a description of Carnes on one of the many circulars sent to all parts of North America after the former treasurer of the mission board disappeared from Atlanta on August 15 last. Spurred on by the $5,000 reward offered for the capture of the missing man, the amateur detective kept his eyes open and noticed a stranger in a private rooming house here who resembled Carnes' photograph.

The sleuth immediately notified police here of his discovery and two detectives were sent to the rooming house. The stranger, cornered, admitted he was Carnes. The detectives said he answered the description of the hunted man in every particular.

A large sum of money was found in Carnes' room, the detectives announced. The exact amount was not revealed.

When first questic · Carnes said he was F. L. Lewis and that he came here from Milwaukee three weeks ago. After a severe grueling by the detectives, he admitted his identity. He had been reported seen in several American cities during the far-flung search made f · him.

The prisoner was to be formally charged as af ugitive from justice when arraigned in city court here today. Photographs and fingerprints of Carnes are being sent here from Atlanta to confirm the prisoner's identity. Atlanta police advised that they will not begin extradition proceedings until they are certa' that the man held here is Carnes.

CARDS NEED 1, YANKS 'IN'

this afternoon. For they can blow that ball game right down the old pipestem and still take a bow as champions of the National League, provided the Giants blithely boot another to the Cubs.

1,000-to-1—SHOT

In other words, today is just about one of those "either or both" occasions, the old 1,000 to 1 shot that exists only in the mind of the come-on. And what then of tomorrow and those foresighted boys who did their box-officing well in advance of the great day?

If the thing that should happen today does happen. I can say with reasonable confidence that they won't take those tickets with them to the Polo Grounds tomorrow and I'll even tell you how it is that I know so much. They won't be going to the Polo Grounds.

They won't be going because the promised climax of one of the great races of baseball history would be a climax no longer. The race, in fact, would be a race no longer. The Cardinals, by that time, would be the official and accredited champions of the league and the ball game that was to have been the epic of the generation would and, in truth, probably will be a gripping struggle between one team that is going nowhere and another that has already gone. The ushers always have the front row boxes at a pastime like that.

CARDS VIRTUALLY "IN"

The Cards this morning virtually are "in." They can go wrong, but undoubtedly they won't. They got this way yesterday by pulling out another of their theatrical 15th-inning finishes while the Giants again were finishing a rousing second to the Cubs. The St. Louis entry thus went two games ahead of the situation with exactly two games yet to be played.

Dormie two, they call it on the seventh tee, but then golf ever was the polite endeavor of all sports. With the low and vulgar, dormie would run for Aloysius Sweeney. "Dead," they would say, brutally, and let it go at that. This being the case, the Giants today are politely dormie but vulgarly dead.

Thus is one victim of the great war identified, even though official confirmation is yet lacking. Another, meantime, has been definitely recognized and accounted for, although with difficulty. There was not much left of the Philadelphia Athletics when they dug them out of the ruins of their own pennant hopes late yesterday.

They had made the good fight, they had kept the faith but they failed to win the pennant. This went to the Yankees officially when they won their third straight from the Tigers.

The Cardinals can join the Yankees today and make 1926 repeat itself. All they have to do is take the Braves again and this should be no trick at all for a ball club that can win two 15-inning games of almost tragic importance within four days. Besides, the Braves are all out of miracles after holding a prospective pennant winner scoreless for five straight innings between the tenth and the fourteenth, inclusive, yesterday.

The Giants, meantime, have only one chance to make that Sunday climax of theirs click. They must beat the Cubs today and hope for the break of all breaks in Boston. I really shouldn't care, you know, to bet it that way.

SLOT MACHINE CHARGES HOLD THREE FOR COURT

Arrested last week when Constable Angelo Iannuzzi, of Sharpsburg, reported finding slot machines in their establishments, two grocers and a restaurant proprietor were held for court last night by Justice of the Peace Anthony Ferraro, of Sharpsburg. They are Pete Pitallski, George Hereto and Jacob Karpinski, all of Main street.

COUNTY CHIEFS BACK BONDS

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Uniontown was selected for the 1929 convention of the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners, at the annual convention here.

Frank G. Werley, Lehigh county, was chosen president. Other officers elected were: John D. Walker, Columbia county, vice president; M. Harvey Taylor, Daughin county, second vice president; L. C. Norris, Clearfield county, secretary and treasurer.

The convention went on record as favoring the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue for highway purposes, to be voted on in November. Another resolution favored the rebate of 5 per cent on collection of taxes before a certain period in cities of the third class.

State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis, in an address, advocated state maintenance of city streets that connect links of the state highway system. He also advocated the taking over of all toll bridges and county bridges on the state highway system.

YOUTHS PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE OF MURDER

INDIANA, Pa., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Milard Mardis and William Campbell pleaded guilty to murder here yesterday when arraigned for trial, charged with slaying Frank Carney, Strongstown farmer, last May 5. Delmas Hartman, indicted with Mardis and Campbell, pleaded not guilty. In the case of Mardis and Campbell, Judge J. N. Langham set the week of December 17 for hearing testimony to fix the degree of murder. The case of Hartman was continued until December.

The youths are accused of beating Carney to death in his barn after he had gone there at night to investigate a noise. Carney was reputed to be wealthy. Detectives said robbery was the motive.

ALL PHILA. POLICE SHIFTED

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—Thrown into confusion by Mayor Mackey's drastic order directing the transfer of all the city's policemen to different districts, Philadelphia's 4,300 captains, sergeants and patrolmen were wondering today where next week will find them stationed.

The city's most sweeping police shake-up in history climaxed the grand jury investigation into graft, extortion, bribery and bootlegging among the members of the police force. The Mayor gave instructions to Director of Public Safety Davis that every district commander render a detailed account of conditions in his district before being transferred. These reports will be utilized in making a thorough "clean-up" of the city.

SMITH IN MILWAUKEE FOR PROHIBITION TALK

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 29.—Gov. Smith brought his presidential candidacy into Wisconsin today and Milwaukee gave him a reception such as it never accorded anyone, save possibly the late Bob LaFollette.

Tonight in the city auditorium, Gov. Smith will bring to a close his Western trip. He will speak on prohibition. He deliberately chose Milwaukee, the former brewing capital of America, as the spot in which to explain his ideas of prohibition reform.

"I will speak about the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act," said the Governor.

RECORD WELCOME

Milwaukeeans said that no candidate for the presidency has ever received the reception which Milwaukee gave to Gov. Smith last night. Thousands surrounded the station when he arrived and other thousands packed the streets for two miles to see him. Red fire burned along the curbs. And as though these did not give light enough, the Democratic nominee stood in an open car most of the way with a search light playing upon him throughout the line of march.

Reports as to Gov. Smith's ability to carry the state in November vary according to the informant. The betting today was even money, with not much money being wagered either way.

Senator "Young Bob" La Follette has thus far maintained silence concerning the presidential race. But most of his friends are working tooth and nail for Smith. Senator John J. Blaine, who is La Follette's colleague at Washington and a former governor, has just come out for Smith, and announced he would neither vote for nor support Hoover.

Herman E. Kern, now chairman of the state committee, and an old La Follette lieutenant, is distinctly cool to the Hoover candidacy. While neither he nor La Follette have indorsed Gov. Smith, it is well known that their friends are supporting Smith.

It is into such a situation that Gov. Smith stepped today. He is hopeful of carrying the state in November. His speech tonight is calculated to help him along the road. Milwaukee is wet and so is Wisconsin.

Gov. Smith will spend two nights in Milwaukee, the longest he has tarried anywhere since setting forth on his Western journey two weeks ago. He will not leave Milwaukee until 12:30 Sunday afternoon for Rochester, and the Democratic state convention.

The automobile is said to have been demolished. Krut was driver of the machine.

Voice and Hand Fail Curtis

EN ROUTE WITH SENATOR CURTIS IN OKLAHOMA, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—His right arm in a sling and his voice almost gone, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, the Republican vice presidential nominee, went doggedly ahead today on the last lap of a gruelling 5,000-mile campaign of the West.

A friend slammed an automobile door against the hand of Senator Curtis as he entered the car upon his arrival at Lawton late yesterday, and this blow took away one of the Senator's most reliant campaign tools. He loves to shake hands with folks, and since his voice has gone back on him he has been shaking hands instead of speaking at many of the train stops along his path through the West and Southwest.

The 68-year-old campaigner was undaunted, however. He was treated by a local physician, who found the hand severely and painfully mashed, but he returned last night to the fair grounds pavilion at Lawton, to go ahead with his speech to an appreciative audience, which jammed every bit of space.

Stalled on Tracks, Car Is Shoved; Rams Store

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Sept. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Neve, of Leechburg, narrowly escaped death or serious injury late yesterday when their automobile became stalled on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in Ninth street between the lowered safety gates with a passenger train approaching.

The couple leaped from the car, and the husband pushed it through the gates, unaware of it being in gear.

The motion started the car, and it crashed through the store front of the Fisher Motor Company, causing $100 damage.

BANK CASHIER IS HELD FOR PART IN ROBBERY

International News Service.

OIL CITY, Pa., Sept. 29.—Following his plea of not guilty to charges of being an accessory to arson, larceny and burglary, in connection with the robbery and fire of the Citizens Bank of Pleasantville, Edwin Flick, cashier of the bank, was held in the city jail today in default of $10,000 bail for a hearing October 9.

Flick pleaded not guilty to the charge at a hearing last night. Sylvester Watson, Negro, who accused Flick of "engineering" the plans, pleaded guilty to the same charges. Watson is being held in the county jail at Franklin.

The steel box, which was stolen from the bank when it was robbed and set on fire last Monday, and which was recovered yesterday by Police Chief William Martin and Fire Marshal William Reilly in Oil Creek, submerged under seven feet of water, was opened by bank officials last night.

The contents of the box, which were promissory notes, were found to be legible. They had been under water since Monday.

Of the $8,000 said by bank officials to have been taken from the bank's safe, $3,212 was surrendered to police by Watson.

Watson in his alleged confession implicated Flick, stating that the bank cashier had laid the groundwork for the robbery. He claimed Flick had disconnected the burglar alarm system and had furnished him with the combination to the safe.

FIND 3 STILLS IN BUENA VISTA

A three-still moonshine plant was demolished by federal prohibition agents when they entered a two-story frame building at Buena Vista late yesterday, they reported. Total capacity was said to be 250 gallons. The agents reported destroying 300 gallons of whisky and arresting Frank Rastrelli, 35.

A club and barroom in a one-story frame structure at 217 Carson street, yielded a gallon of moonshine and 120 pints of home brew, agents reported. Ed Cunningham, 44 was released on bond.

Whisky displayed on a barroom cash register on the second floor of 606 Ann street, Homestead, agents said, led to a raid in which they seized a quantity of moonshine.

CITY'S STORM AID QUOTA, $150,000, NOT HALF RAISED

With not quite half of Pittsburgh's quota of $150,000 for the hurricane sufferers in Florida and Porto Rico in hand, the local chapter of the American Red Cross is still working energetically to obtain funds and clothing for the refugees.

Receipts yesterday brought Pittsburgh's total up to $70,781.40.

Generous donations of clothing are being received at the depot established at Room 404, Chamber of Commerce Building, where garments for women and children and layettes for infants are being collected for immediate shipment.

While Florida is holding a public memorial service for its 2,300 dead in the storm, it is reported that the Red Cross has its work well in hand in carrying on the emergency relief, but millions of dollars are needed for the work of rehabilitation, which will cover an extended period.

Lytell Signs for Talkies To Be Made Following Stage Engagement of Few Months

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 29.

"ON TRIAL," as the title of one of Warner Brothers' latest all-talking pictures, appears to take on unusual significance. With two members of this "On Trial" cast previously awarded long-term contracts as a reward of their stellar performances in the film, a third now has been similarly rewarded. This one is Bert Lytell. The others, Pauline Frederick and Lois Wilson.

Lytell was induced to give up an Eastern stage engagement to play one of the big roles. Warners took an option on his future services, and now they have determined to exercise their option by having Bert make at least three all-talking Vitaphone photoplays. The first of these will be made a few months hence when Lytell completes a theatrical engagement. Meantime lines continue to line up before the Warner Brothers' Hollywood theater to see the latest Vitaphone film to be shown there, "State Street Sadie."

Jean Hersholt still has some 18 months to fill in for Universal under the terms of his present contract. However, it is understood that negotiations are under way with Paramount which may result in Jean being farmed out to the Lasky lot for a series of three photoplays. The first of these is reported to be "Victory." All hands are hopeful that the various details essential to such a transaction may be worked out so that Jean's name and talent may head the cast of some Paramount productions.

On the best possible authority I believe that Phyllis Haver and Eddie Quillan will soon be working on the Metro lot. It seems that Cecil B. De Mille, now producing for that organization, retained the right when he left Pathe to take two of the Pathe players with him. This much has been known, and it was generally expected that Phyllis would be one of the two. The other, however, was expected to be Bill Boyd, long considered Pathe's box-office ace. Apparently Eddie Quillan's performance in "The Godless Girl" turned the scales in his favor.

The first of the 1928 "baby stars" to come right out and admit her engagement, is Ann Christy, who appears with Harold Lloyd in "Speedy." Ann is to marry one of the profession, John Darrow. They met when John and Ann were both working at the Metropolitan Studios, where Darrow put in a long time in "Hell's Angels."

Thus far James Gleason has submitted a dozen versions of Vilma Banky's next screen story to Samuel Goldwyn. And thus far none of them has met with the complete approval of the cinema sage. It is remarkable the manner in which talented and eminently successful playwrights, fiction writers and similar craftsmen do not provide the movie magnates with the material they desire. It is reported that Jimmy Gleason has thrown up the sponge and gone to writing another play which will doubtless make him another million to stack alongside of those accruing from "Is Zat So?" "The Shannons of Broadway" and others.

Lewis Milestone will direct both "The Shot" and "Taras Bulba" for United Artists release, just as soon as he completes work on "Ellis Island," Emil Jannings' new picture. Milestone and young Millionaire Hughes have had great success together with "Two Arabian Knights" and "The Racket."

They are still talking about Hughes' big Caddo production, "Hell's Kitchen." It is said that the film is not yet complete and that Paramount declines to lend Jimmy Hall for further sequences. Stories of Hughes' seeming extravagance in shooting continue to astonish the film folk. The latest is that he took some ten thousand feet of a man winding up cable. A shot presumably to be used as an insert of a few feet. However, the success of the Caddo pictures already released keep the Wisenheimers from smiling too visibly at anything Hughes does.

Betty Blythe, the "Queen of Sheba Girl," who is as regal now as she was then, is going to make a vaudeville tour with her own company. The gorgeous Betty declares she is through with the movies. "I had ten glorious years on the screen," says Betty. "Now let some of the younger girls have their opportunity." One feature of Betty's show will be a number of dazzingly beautiful gowns which the actress will put on—and off—before the very eyes of the audience. This alone should be enough to "pack 'em in."

WILMERDING PLANS $25,000 BOND ISSUE

Notice of an ordinance to increase the bonded indebtedness of the borough of Wilmerding $25,000 for street improvements was filed in Quarter Sessions Court yesterday by W. F. Pugsley, president of Council, and R. W. Bishop, burgess. The present debt of the borough is $105,000, and the assessed valuation is $6,790,200.

JONSON PLAY IN LIST

Seats are on sale in the box office of the Nixon Theater for Ben Jonson's "Volpone," the second of the plays presented by the Theater Guild of New York, which is in Pittsburgh for the first time this season. "Volpone" will open Monday.

Schwab and Mandel's musical comedy of college life, "Good News," is being held over for an additional week in the Alvin. Engagement positively ends Saturday night, October 6. The regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

Johnny Downs is one of the "Our Gang Kids," who will appear in the Davis next week. "Scooter" Lowry and Mabel Korman are other members of the juvenile company, which will offer a playlet.

The management of the Penn Theater announces, as a special permanent feature, to begin Monday, the showing of Fox-Movietone News on the screen. The screen feature is to be Joan Crawford and John Mack Brown in "Our Dancing Daughters."

LAUNDRESS BENEFITED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Nashville, Tenn.—"I cannot say too much in favor of the medicine. I was in a run-down condition. I worked in a laundry but my health got so bad that I had to give up work. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it and every time I feel run-down I get another bottle. It is an excellent tonic and I am willing to tell others about it. People take me to be much younger than I am."—Mrs. Harry Bornstein, 406 Second Ave. South, Nashville, Tennessee.

ZAIN PRIZES CALL

SPARE-TIME TRY MAY WIN CASH IN AD TEST

You can gain an hour tomorrow morning in which to write advertisements about the 39 Pittsburgh business concerns that are participating in the Zain Ad-Test.

This is the last day for daylight saving. Clocks are to be turned back an hour—or set ahead 11 hours, which amounts to the same thing—before retiring tonight.

If you get up tomorrow at the customary time—that is, so far as the clock is concerned—you will have an extra hour in bed Sunday morning. Instead of spending that hour in bed, get up and devote it to ad writing for the Zain test which The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is conducting. By so doing, you may win $1,000 in cash or another of the prizes totaling $15,000 that this newspaper will award for the best ads submitted in the test.

An hour in the early morning is often worth three later in the day. Your mind is fresher in the forenoon. It is easier to concentrate. You are more likely to have a brilliant idea then than in the afternoon or evening after a fatiguing day.

ADVISED TO TRY OFTEN

But of course to take full advantage of the chance that The Sun-Telegraph offers you to win a snug sum of money or other valuable prize you should utilize every spare minute to write ads for the Zain test. The more the better.

A list of 39 local business concerns participating in the Zain Ad-Test appears in The Sun-Telegraph today and will be printed every day during the campaign. You should make yourself familiar with all of them. The Sun-Telegraph will offer you suggestions every day or so to things worthy of consideration in writing your ads.

In preparing to write your ad about the Peoples Natural Gas Company think what a cheap, clean, efficient fuel natural gas is. What a blessing it has been to the people of this district!

House heating is a matter of great interest at this time, and you should not experience any difficulty in saying things that will focus attention on the Pennsylvania Gas Furnace and B-Line Gas Boilers handled by the Peoples Natural Gas Company. The company's slogan, by the way, is: "You can do it better with gas."

Stogies certainly need no introduction to the people of this district, and some very catchy ads ought to be written about Arco Specials, one of the most popular and best known brands. "All the Joy of a Good Cigar," and at a price considerably lower.

Smoke Arco Specials, and as you enjoy their fine aroma and stimulating fragrance you will be in a position to write enthusiastically of them. If you are not a smoker, ask someone who is what he thinks of Arco Specials, and you will not lack ideas for an attractive advertisement.

THEATERS INCLUDED

Everybody can write with satisfaction about the splendid entertainment that is always to be had at the theaters of the Harris Amusement Company—the Harris, the Sheridan Square, the Harris South Hills, the Palace, the William Penn, and the J. P. Harris Theaters, McKeesport.

The Harris houses are in the best sense of the word family theaters where parents can take their children in full confidence that there will be nothing in the show to offend against decency. The vaudeville and movies are invariably good at the Harris theaters, "where the show is always clean."

"Drive Yourself Automobiles," as rented by the Kissel-Skiles Company, make a strong appeal to common sense and should bring forth a large number of excellent advertisements. There is no better way, of course, to get acquainted with the merits of the system and so prime yourself with good selling points for your ads, than by renting one of the Kissel-Skiles Company's cars and driving it yourself. Their stations are: 125 Seventh street, Atlantic 4666; 555 Sixth street, Grant 1900; 3923 Forbes street, Schenley 1900 and 6107 Broad street, Hiland 1900.

"Own your home," has become a cardinal principle of thrift. You will recall it when you come to write your advertisement about the General Homes Corporation, a real estate company that specializes in home construction. Do not confine your ad about this concern to mere generalities about homes and home owning, but visit their model home at 2439 Brighton road and ask them some questions. Find out something about the efficiency and economy of the houses constructed by the General Homes Corporation for residential purposes.

PRODUCTS RELIABLE

In preparing your ad in regard to the Glick Auto Supply Company 3534-3542 Bigelow Boulevard, you will have to bear in mind that this concern is featuring United States Royal Tires and Willard Batteries. If you have had much experience with automobiles it will hardly be necessary to tell you anything about the good qualities of these tires and batteries. The tires are noted for the excellence of the materials that go into them, and for their durability. The batteries also enjoy an enviable reputation.

Do not hesitate to visit any of the participating firms and ask them about things that you think should be emphasized in your ads.

Read the rules carefully.

SUGGESTIONS

1—Prizes are awarded for ideas. Grammar, punctuation, spelling, or fancy handwriting, layouts, or art work not essential.

2—Study the ads of the firms in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Zain campaign. They offer goods or service. They seek ideas. Get your family and friends interested. Write briefly and to the point. A letter, even, may win you a prize.

3—New, original, brief ideas may win prizes or the GRAND PRIZE of $1,000.

4—The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Zain Ad Test Editor, Grant 6500, will answer any and all questions.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Buds, One by One, Fall in Line as Parents Announce Dates for That All-Important Event—Coming-Out Party

ONE by one the debutantes are falling into line and their parents are announcing the dates chosen for those all-important occasions—the coming-out parties. Up to the present time there is probably no day in her life which means so much to the bud as this one, when she is formally presented to her father's and mother's friends and thenceforth is permitted to go out "in society."

Even some of the folks who are still at their summer homes are sending back word of their plans for debut parties. Among them are the Charles D. Marshalls, of Fifth avenue, who are making a late stay at their country place, "Laurel Locks Farms," at Pottstown, Pa. From there comes the news that Mrs. Marshall will give a tea at her home on Friday afternoon, November 23, to introduce her daughter, Mary. The Marshall family, by the way, is expected to return to the city about the middle of October.

In addition to her tea, plans are being made for another party for Mary, this one a large dance in the Pittsburgh Club. Her brother and his wife, the John N. Marshalls, of Beechwood boulevard, will be hosts at this affair, and the date chosen, I hear, is December 27.

THESE are by no means all of the plans being made for entertaining our debutantes this winter. There will be parties for all the buds, and one I know of is the dinner which Mrs. Alfred E. Jenkins is planning to give the Friday night before Christmas, December 21, in the University Club. She will have as her guests of honor two of the debutantes, Dorothea Jenkins and Elizabeth McCullough.

After the dinner, the guests will go on to the ball which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans are giving for their debutante daughter, Louise.

AND still another party is one to be given October 11 in the Twentieth Century Club by Mrs. George J. Willock and her sister, Mrs. Charles A. Dickson. Two of the debutantes will be the guests of honor, Jane Allderdice and Bettie Guiler. Jane is a daughter of the Taylor Allderdices and will make her debut at a tea October 23, while Bettie will be introduced November 6 by her mother, Mrs. Leonard Guiler.

BUT October events of importance are not limited to debutante affairs. I've just been told that Martha Brooks has chosen October 15 as the date for her marriage to Alexander Laughlin Robinson, son of the William Christopher Robinsons, of Ridge avenue, North Side and Sewickley Heights. Martha is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks, of Shields, and her engagement to Mr. Robinson was announced in July.

MOST of our summer travelers abroad have returned home, but some local folks are just leaving. For instance, the John J. Kennedys, of Shady avenue, are going to sail next Wednesday on the Aquitania for a two months' trip through England and the Continent.

A SMALL wedding of yesterday morning was that of Miss Dorothy Coates Preston, daughter of Matthew A. Preston, of Bayard place, and Charles Schley, of Pittsburgh, which took place in the chapel of Calvary Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Dr. Lewis G. Morris officiating. Only the families were present at the ceremony, and there were no attendants.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Smith, of Mt. Washington, and Alexander Uherkovich, of Newark, N. J., which was solemnized Monday in St. Mary of the Mount Church. Miss Helen G. Egan and Orville Royer were the attendants. After an Eastern motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Uherkovich will be at home in Newark.

FRANK G. WALLACE, of Edgewood, entertained at dinner last night in honor of his niece, Miss Mary Alma Lewis, of Coraopolis, whose marriage to Kenneth Richard Haley, of Beaver, will be solemnized tonight.

THE Past Matrons and Past Patrons' Association of Pennsylvania, O. E. S., held a luncheon and reception Thursday in the Hotel Roosevelt in honor of the worthy grand matron, Mrs. Jane M. Roberts. Covers were laid for 137, and a musical program was given. Mrs. S. Beatrice Andrews, vice-president, was chairman. Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Shearer is president.

* * *

DR. HARRY M. SIGAL has returned home after spending a year furthering his study of surgery in Berlin, Vienna, Budapest and Prague. Before returning home he visited Palestine, Egypt, Italy, Turkey, Greece, Switzerland and his birthplace, Roumania.

MISS ELIZABETH C. ZEIGLER, of Bartlett street, has returned home after visiting her former roommate at Wellesley, Miss Bertha Adkins, of Salisbury, Md. Miss Adkins motored home with Miss Zeigler and will be her house guest for several weeks, and will attend the weddings of two Wellesley girls, Miss Ruth Campbell and Miss Eleanor Baton, scheduled for Monday and next Saturday.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. GERALD C. DAVIDSON, of Connellsville, have announced the engagement of their sister, Miss Selma R. Goldston, of Pittsburgh, to Meyer M. Snyder, of Connellsville, son of Mrs. Edith Snyder, of Montreal, Canada. Miss Goldston is a teacher in the Homeville Public School.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN SENFT, of Westminster, Md., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie Starner Senft, and Eugene Roger Means, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Means, of Thomas boulevard, which was solemnized September 14.

Sun-Telegraph's Stand Wins Praise

BELLEVUE, Pa., Sept. 27.

Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I read with interest your editorial of September 25, headed, "Council Should Probe Charge For Police Graft." The next item on this page that attracted my attention was "Great Passages From the Bible," the Book of Jonah, Chapter I. The two articles seemed to fit together very appropriately.

On the following day, your editorial headed "Probe of Graft Charges Wins Credit for Gardner," and the second of the Great Pasages from the Bible from the Book of Jonah, Chapter II, attracted my attention.

I wish to congratulate you for the way in which you publish items regarding this matter.

Yours Truly,
George W. Judd.

PITT, TECH, DUKES OPEN GRID SEASON TODAY

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Cardinals May Follow Yankees Through as Pennant Winners Today—Redbird Victory, Giant Defeat, Cancellation or Tie Game Would Give St. Louis Flag—Football Makes Its Real Start.

THE suspense incidental to one hot pennant race is over at last, and before nightfall nerve-racked fandom may be relieved of the strain under which it is still awaiting the finish of the other.

For the Yanks are "in" definitely in the American League, and the Cardinals may follow them through in the National.

George Pipgras.

While George Pipgras was pitching the Yankees to the pennant yesterday by taking from Detroit the one game needed to sew up the flag in the junior wheel, Bill McKechnie's Redbirds, with the assistance given by the Cubs in downing the Giants, approached to within half a game of the National League championship by emerging victorious from a 15-inning tussle with the Braves.

WITH only two games remaining to be played by each of the contending clubs in the Heydler loop, St. Louis is leading by two full lengths, so that the best New York can get now is a tie.

And to gain even that it would be necessary for the McGrawites to win both of their remaining games today and tomorrow, and for the Cardinals to lose to the Braves in Boston this afternoon. In that event the pace would end in a deadlock and a play-off of best two out of three games would be required.

AGAINST this possibility of a tie for the Giants, the Cardinals have six chances to cinch the flag today—three on each side.

On their own side they can sew up the flag if they beat the Braves, if they play a tie game with them, or if the scheduled contest has to be called off on acount of unfavorable weather.

On the New York side, the pennant will be rendered safe for St. Louis if the Giants lose to the Cubs, if the game ends in a tie or if it is found necessary to cancel the event by reason of bad weather.

THE Athletics still would have a mathematical chance to tie the Yankees for first place in the American League if a postponed game with the Red Sox had been played and won. The A's had a chance to play it off on an open date, but previously they had arranged an exhibition game in Montreal for that day and the Mackian management is said to have made no effort to have it canceled.

Knute Rockne.

FOOTBALL makes its bow throughout the country today, and Pittsburgh figures prominently among the starters, with all three of the city's representatives in the intercollegiate ranks playing their first games. Pitt meets Thiel at the Stadium, Carnegie Tech takes on Westminster in Youngstown, O., and the Dukes grapple with Slippery Rock on the Bluff.

Though the uncertain National League pennant finish and the world series to follow, still hold public interest to a great extent, football is not without a large share of attention as the curtain goes up, and starting conditions in general are such as to give promise of one of the greatest seasons in the history of the gridiron sport.

FEWER football teams will use the huddle system this year. Holy Cross was the first of the Eastern colleges to announce a decision to abandon it, and since that time a number of other institutions have also gone back to the plan of having the quarterback bark out the signals.

The huddle, first used by Coach Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, was generally adopted for the purpose of eliminating mistaken signals and at the same time lessening the possibility of opponents getting wise to the numbers, but many coaches apparently have concluded that the old method is the better one, particularly since the dead-stop rule has discounted the advantage of a quick snapback after a huddle.

Don Harrison.

KNUTE ROCKNE, famous Notre Dame coach, sees a psychological help to a team in having the quarterback call the signals in a sharp, commanding, inspiring voice.

"A quarterback, by proper inflection, can make his voice speed up the action of a team just as the baton in the hands of a great orchestra leader raises the tempo of his musicians," said Rockne on one occasion while explaining why he did not like the huddle system. "Give me a quarterback with a voice that conveys confidence and my team will be infinitely stronger in a pinch. Th quarterback, barking his sig-

OUTSTANDING PLAYERS

All three of the local collegiate captains are exceptional players. Harpster is one of the leading contenders for all-America halfback honors, in this, his final, season. Fox is a light but fast and sturdy lineman, while Donnelli is a good runner and punter. Donnelli also is a soccer player of note, having starred for the Heidelberg team, national amateur champion last year.

PRY OFF GRID LID

Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University open the collegiate football season insofar as Pittsburgh is concerned today. Capt. Alec Fox, guard, will lead Pitt into action against Thiel at the Stadium; Capt. Howard Harpster, Tech halfback, pilots the Skibos against Westminster College at Rayen Field, Youngstown, and Capt. Buff Donnelli, halfback, trots out the Duquesne University team against Slippery Rock State Teachers' College on the Duquesne field.

CANZONERI LOSES TITLE

By SID MERCER.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The presidential year blight on champions of the ring came to roost at Madison Square Garden last night when Tony Canzoneri, a native New Yorker, surrendered the world featherweight title to a foreign challenger, gallant little Andre Routis, of France.

Routis wrested the crown from the Gothamite in a desperate 15-round battle by concentrating on a body attack that gradually wiped out Tony's early lead and put them on even terms going into the twelfth round. Canzoneri, knowing he had to make another spurt to win, waged a desperate battle in the closing rounds, but couldn't keep the eager Frenchman away from his body.

In the many spirited exchanges, Routis more than held his own and frequently drove Canzoneri to clinching and holding as the challenger whipped both hands to the body. It was close, but Routis won, as he expected, by wearing down the champion and setting the pace in the homestretch. The writer's score sheet gave Routis seven rounds, Canzoneri five and three even.

EMULATES CRIQUI

Thus the featherweight title leaves America for the second time. Eugene Criqui held it for a brief reign in 1923 by knocking out Johnny Kilbane, but surrendered it to Johnny Dundee six weeks later.

Canzoneri held the title less than a year. After winning his way through a field of contenders, he met his leading rival, Benny Bass, at the Garden last spring and won a de-

REDBIRDS NEED ONLY ONE MORE WIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The major league pennant races are practically over and barring a miracle the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals will meet in the world series, scheduled to start next Thursday.

The Yankees clinched the American League pennant by their victory over the Detroit Tigers yesterday, 11 to 6. The Cardinals have only to win one more game to capture the National League championship—or if the New York Giants lose today the effect will be the same.

By defeating the Tigers the Yanks won their sixth pennant of the last eight years. They will enter the world series crippled by the absence of Earl Combs, probably the greatest center fielder in the game today, and with Pennock, Babe Ruth and Tony Lazzeri suffering from injuries which may seriously impair their value in the post-season classic.

Combs fractured his wrist in Thursday's ball game, Pennock may be unable to pitch at all, Ruth is limping and Lazzeri has water on the shoulder, which makes it extremely dangerous for him to use his arm.

When the St. Louis Cardinals scored seven runs in the fifteenth inning at Braves Field yesterday, they practically clinched the National League pennant. The standing today is:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
St. Louis	94	58	.618
New York	92	60	.605

GIANTS' CHANCE SLIM

The only chance for the Giants to come through would be for McGraw's club to defeat the Chicago Cubs today while the Cardinals were losing to the Boston Braves and then for the Giants to defeat the St. Louis outfit at the Polo Grounds Sunday. In that highly improbable event it would also be necessary for the Redbirds to lose to the Giants in the three-game

BUCS PLAY FINALE TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Largely as a matter of formality, the Pirates and Dodgers will meet on the greensward this afternoon. Thus will the season end for the Freebooters, who "cinched" fourth place day before yesterday by losing a double-header to the Robins.

Ervin Brame is all geared up to face the Flatbush gang today. It is likely that Jim Elliott or Watson Clark will heckle the Pirates.

BUCS TAKE REST

The Pittsburgh camp is quiet today and there wasn't much doing yesterda. Although a number of the boys enjoyed the spectacle at the Polo Grounds, the ninth inning splash put on by the Giants was worth the money, although the visiting athletes found no trouble in crashing the gate.

The Buccos are all agreed that the stop by Clyde Beck on Hogan's drive in the ninth inning saved the game for Chicago and was a big factor in giving the Cardinals the two-game lead they enjoy today. Hogan came up with the bases jammed and three runs needed to tie, one being out at the time. Hal Carlson had just been called to the rescue of Guy Bush, who collapsed in the ninth.

Hogan sent a screeching grounder toward left. Beck moved toward the sizzler, which seemed to defy clean fielding, nailed the ball, and shot it to Fred Maguire to force Jackson. Lefty Grimm made a sensational stop of Maguire's toss that was meant to double up the big catcher. One rune went over on the smash, but the stop was sufficient to take the starch out of any team.

Montreal fans will see the Pirates in action on Sunday. Manager Bush will take most of his regulars, aside from his pitchers, to the big Canadian city.

PANTHERS HOST TO THIEL SQUAD

By JESS M. CARVER.

THE battle cry of the thousands and tens of thousands will ring throughout the length and breadth of the land today as the shackles of preseason training are removed from the eager sinews of the 1928 collegiate gridiron campaign. Football, the breeder of men, is prepared to take its annual toll of the hearts and pockets of America. The day of the weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth on the part of the beaten, the whoops of delight and raucous cries of joy of the victors is at hand.

All three of Pittsburgh's own varsity elevens will swing into the fray today, two of them clicking before home crowds and the other playing on a foreign field. Pitt and Duquesne will be seen here, and Carnegie Tech will provide a collegiate treat for the folks of Youngstown, O., meeting Westminster in the Rayen High Stadium.

Thiel College, of Greenville, Pa., the school that plays a third of its schedule in this city, will oppose the Golden Panthers of Pitt in the Stadium this afternoon, repeating the opening act of the 1927 season. The Lutherans, under the tutelage of Dr. T. V. Holleran, himself a former Pitt star, arrived in town early this morning and reported themselves 50 per cent stronger than they were when they lost to the locals a year ago. The Panthers, co-champions of the East with Yale last year and one of the few major elevens to go through its regular schedule undefeated, hopes to carve out a resounding triumph over the embattled Lutherans today, thus getting off on the right foot in the present campaign.

DUKES HOPEFUL

Duquesne, hopeful that its Notre Dame-trained eleven will show the form and strength that has been the object of Duke prayers for the past decade, meets a formidable opponent in the Slippery Rock State Teachers' College eleven on the Bluff gridiron. Coach Layden, with a promising-looking squad and a gallery of lettermen on hand, has been drilling his men hard since the Dukes first went into camp; confident that he has been able to instill into his players some of the football that made him famous as a member of the great Four Horsemen backfield at Notre Dame. He is hopeful that the increased familiarity with his system, born of his second year at the local institution, has brought results, and is keenly alive to the task that confronts his team today.

The Slippery Rock team is no slouch and is composed of veteran material. The eleven was able to hold Carnegie Tech's great freshman machine of '27 to a 7-6 score, and the Tartan frosh of last year would have done credit to any minor college.

Carrying with them a goodly number of rooters and the highest hopes that have ever been raised in Carnegie Tech hearts, the crimson-jerseyed Skibo eleven entrained for Youngstown early this morning, where it will square off with Dyke Beebe's Westminster Titans in the opening bout of the season this afternoon.

MET IN '27 OPENER

The two elevens met in the inaugural of 1927, with Tech scoring a 25-0 triumph over the United Presbyterians, and only after a hard struggle. Both teams are rated stronger than they were a year ago. The Tartans have probably become relatively stronger than the Titans, so it is hardly likely that the Plaid banner will be dragged in the dust today.

Tech boasts the most promising squad in its history this year, and because of the fact that Westminster, coached by a former Tartan star, and a powerful Class B eleven itself, is capable of affording the Steffen-Waddell machine smart and aggressive opposition, this contest

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Bill Skiff, former Pirate catcher, who starred for Newark this season until his right arm was broken with a pitched ball, called on the Pirates at their local camp. Skiff was playing brilliant ball for the Bears when he was struck with a fast one that broke his throwing arm. He says the injury has healed.

Bill was able to finish up the season, and among his duties was the task of receiving Victor Aldridge in four battles, all of which were won by Firpo. "Aldridge showed me that he knows what it is all about," said Bill. Victor, it will be remembered, held out on John McGraw until after the season opened, and after a long run of in-and-out work he was shipped to Newark. But he has been recalled for next season.

There are rumors afloat that the Hoosier will be traded to Cincinnati for Pete Donohue. The Reds, however, probably would ask for more players, as Donohue has not pitched nearly as long as Victor.

Skiff, by the way, had a big word for a Pittsburgher who is owned by the Newark club. The boy is Gerald Fitzgerald, of Knoxville, who starred with the Homewood club. Gerald, in his first year in organized baseball, was farmed to Albany, of the Eastern League. After playing dandy ball for Albany, he was recalled by Newark.

The Knoxville youth attended yesterday's game at the Polo Grounds along with Skiff. He is a left-hander all the way and in physique is almost a double for Paul Waner, being the same size and weight.

"Gerald ought to go up, and I think he will," said Skiff. "He is fast, smart and can hit." Well, here's hoping another Pittsburgh sandlotter makes the grade.

John McGraw, while partaking of a sandwich at the Polo Grounds before yesterday's game, informed the writer that his club had all the worst of the decision that caused the protest in Thursday's game. The play in question caused a big furore in New York. John Heydler was so anxious to get all sides of the controversy, he summoned members of the Giants, members of the Cubs and the umpires in three separate conferences. He finally disallowed the protest.

YDE IN SERIES START TODAY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The little world series between Indianapolis and Rochester stood even at one game each today. Rochester won yesterday's game, 10 to 5.

The Indians will use Emil Yde, former Pittsburgh hurler, in the third game of the series today. Herman Bell, star right-hander of the Red Wings, will oppose Yde.

Free hitting and scoring was the feature of the day yesterday as contrasted with the first game of the series Wednesday, which the Indians took, 3 to 2. The probable lineup:

PANTHERS

looms as one of the most important in the section.

All other tri-state district elevens with the exception of Grove City will be in action today.

At Washington, a powerful Bethany team is expected to give Andy Kerr's Wash-Jeff varsity a close battle. West Virginia, still smarting under the defeat served a week ago by Davis-Elkins, faces another powerful state rival in Gebe Ross' West Virginia Wesleyan machine. Unless the Rodgermen are awake, last Saturday's setback may be repeated.

GENEVA-ADRIAN CLASH

Geneva, thrice conference champs, opens the 1928 campaign with the Adrian (Mich.) College team at Beaver Falls. Waynesburg is in Buffalo, N. Y., for a game with St. Canisus. Allegheny's rejuvenated Methodists have Mt. Union College, a powerful Ohio Conference team, as the foe at Meadville. St. Vincent's will get started against the Tech freshmen at Latrobe.

Davis-Elkins, still holding the spotlight as a result of its triumph over West Virginia, tackles another major foe in the Navy at Annapolis.

Penn State will be in action at State College, opposed to Lebanon Valley. Unless the outlook at State has improved during the last two weeks, the Lions may find Lebanon Valley harder to get by than in previous years. Bucknell, boasting one of the strong teams of the East, has Schuylkill to get by at Lewisburg.

EASTERNERS ON GRID

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The 1928 football season in the East sets under full headway today with the small colleges being fed to the big ones in large numbers but with indications that the games will be closer and the scores smaller than on any previous opening day.

Uncle Sam's Annapolis Midshipmen take on Davis-Elkins College of Elkins, W. Va.

The Army meets Boston University, while Syracuse encounters Hobart. New York University draws a fighting opponent in little Niagara.

Other games include Gil Dobie's Cornell boys against Clarkson Tech; Columbia vs. Vermont, Dartmouth and Norwich, Georgetown and Mt. St. Mary, Lafayette and Albright, and Pennsylvania and Ursinus.

CHAMPIONS ENTERED IN WALTONS' TOURNEY

Champions from distant points are among the contestants in the annual fall tournament of the Izaak Walton League of Allegheny county, being staged this afternoon at the Saunders range on the William Penn highway. Fly and bait-casting and rifle, trap and revolver-shooting make up the major portion of the lengthy program, which is open to the public.

Golf Stars Battle Today

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Two long hitters, Glenna Collett of Providence, and Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, have their day in the women's golf championship with the national title—the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Miss Collett has won the championship twice—in 1922 and 1925—while her 19-year-old opponent from Chicago is knocking for the first time at the women's golf hall of fame. The former champion won the right to bid for the title again by defeating Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, Philadelphia, who has also worn the crown, 4 up and 3 to play. Miss Collett played a high brand of golf, as testified by her score over the first nine she was out in 36, even four's and one over men's par.

Miss Van Wie had to work for her victory over Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, the sterling Philadelphia player, who has been three times champion of the United States and in addition twice held the titles in her native Britain. Mrs. Hurd fought heroically to the last, but this was no novel experience for the slim, young Western girl and she came out victorious.

YANK NETMEN LEAD BRITISH

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—American tennis players, meeting the British Davis cup players in a nine-match exhibition series over a three-day period on the courts of the Los Angeles Tennis Club here, held a 2-to-1 advantage as the second of three contests came up for settlement today.

The youthful Americans trounced the best of England's players in one singles encounter and one doubles match yesterday. Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., defeated I. G. Collins, 0-6, 6-4, 6-4. The doubles triumph was by Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn, former Princeton star, who defeated J. C. Gregory, captain of the British squad, and Edward Higgs, first ranking of England's racquet wielders, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

H. W. Austin, British ace, won from Keith Gledhill, 17-year-old Santa Barbara, Cal., player in a spectacular battle, 7-5, 6-4, for the only British victory.

The program for today: Gregory (British) vs. Bell (American); Higgs (British) vs. Van Ryn (American); Austin and Collins (British) vs. Doeg and Gledhill.

After their three matches tomorrow the British players will leave for Australia.

PRO STARS MEET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Vincent Richards, former Davis Cup player and present American professional tennis champion, faces a hard task this afternoon when he meets Karel Kozeluh, European professional champion, in the final round match of the national professional tournament at Forest Hills. The wiry little Czechoslovakian, regarded as the greatest player in the world, has beaten Richards in each of their three previous clashes.

In the semi-finals Kozeluh defeated Harvey B. Snodgrass, of the Coronado Beach Club, California, in straight sets, while Richards was forced to five sets before eliminating Howard Kinsey, of San Francisco.

ARENSBURG IN FINAL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

By dint of a gallant comeback after being twice within a point of defeat, Wally Arensberg, driving racket ace of Shady Side Academy, fought to well-earned triumph over Joe Tatala, Stowe Township High School star, to enter the final round of the sixth annual Harvard Cup interscholastic tennis tournament on the Arnold School gallery court yesterday afternoon. Tatala succumbed before a determined rally that brought a 6-8, 6-1, 7-5 triumph to the slender Blue and Gold performer. In the Crimson flagon finale, Arensberg will encounter the redoubtable Billy O'Loughlin, Duquesne University Prep luminary, who yesterday by virtue of the default of Elmer Artzberger, South Hills entrant, breezed into his third Harvard Cup trophy bracket. The titular event is billed for the University Club lot at 3:30 P. M. today.

NOTES of the BOXERS

MANAGER JOHN HERNON, of Motor Square Garden, is looking for one of the largest opening show gates in the history of the East End arena for the Chuck Wiggins-Garfield Johnson battle Monday night. He reports the advance seat sale one of the best ever and the fans are talking up the show.

Wiggins will arrive in the city tomorrow, Johnson already is here, having come in Friday from New York, where he did his training.

Baby Joe Gans, who recently knocked out Cuddy DeMarco in Brooklyn, boxes Tony Vaccarelli there tonight.

Jack Kankish and Tony LeRose box a 10-round return bout at Marietta, O., tonight. They recently battled 12 rounds to a draw there.

M'KEESPORT TO DEDICATE NEW FIELD

Memorial Field, McKeesport High School's new athletic amphitheater, will be dedicated today, with appropriate excercises. A record-breaking crowd of about 15,000 is expected to be on hand. The field adjoins the high school and is the finest high school stadium in the district.

A parade, led by the high school band, will precede the dedication by Mayor Lyle at the bowl. Following the ceremony, McKeesport High's football team will engage Clairton High's eleven.

McKeesport business men have declared a half-holiday for the event.

KAUFFMANN RETAINS TITLE

Carl F. Kauffmann, National public links champion, retained his city golf title when he defeated Francis Lally, 3 and 2, over the Schenley links yesterday in the 36-hole final round. The runner-up was 2 down at the turn.

SILLIMAN CHAMPION

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Sept. 29.—John Graham, veteran South Hills Country Club golfer, fell before Buck Silliman of the Moon Brook Country Club, Jamestown, N. Y., here yesterday in the final of the annual amateur invitation tournament at the Riverside Golf Club. The margin was 1 up, and the battle was close and keen.

In the semi-final, Silliman eliminated Maurice LeBosquet of Castle Shannon, West Penn champion, to bring about the tourney's biggest upset.

CAPEBIANCO VICTOR

Johnny Capebianco, Chartiers Heights Country Club, captured the Western Pennsylvania championship for caddie-masters and assistant professionals in the final of the title play staged at the Montour Heights Golf Club yesterday afternoon. nals, controls the action. He can speed up the play or slow it down, all depending upon how he uses his voice.

WHILE the Pitt team is only starting its 1928 season on the barred field, the athletic officials at the local university are busy at the task of making arrangements for the year to follow. Considerable progress on the 1919 schedule is reported to have been made already by Athletic Director Don Harrison and his aides.

The Panthers' program for next year will differ from their previous schedules in the fact that more games will be played away from home than in previous seasons on account of Carnegie Tech's having the right under the new agreement to use The Stadium for four contests apart from the annual Pitt-Carnegie meeting. The Blue and Gold, therefore, will play four games abroad, and these are now being lined up.

In addition to the struggle with Notre Dame at South Bend, it is understood that Pitt will visit Durham, N. C., to play Jimmy DeHart's Duke University team, that a minor event will be played in Erie, and that an effort is being made to schedule an encounter on the grounds of a member of the Western Conference.

CUDDY DEMARCO, former Charleroi and McKeesport boxer, is now making his home at Webster Hall here, and is also using the gymnasium, handball courts and swimming pool at the hotel as training quarters to prepare himself for a series of bouts that he has in prospect. He will do his roadwork on Schenley Oval.

DeMarco is considerably overweight, as a troublesome boil prevented him from training properly for recent matches and he was forced to resort to the drying-out process to get under even the welterweight limit. He is ready for a real grind now, however, and is determined to be at his best weight and his best form for future engagements.

Cuddy DeMarco.

CUDDY has some important fights in view in Pittsburgh, McKeesport and elsewhere. Manager John L. Hernon, of the Motor Square Garden Club, which opens its season with the Chuck Wiggins-Garfield Johnson match next Monday night, is trying to book Baby Joe Gans for a return match with DeMarco. Cuddy, who was defeated by Gans in the East recently, offers no alibis but praises Gans to the skies. "He is a great fighter, and I give him all the credit in the world," said Cuddy. "His right-hand punch is as straight as a left jab, and there is nothing that he can't do. He is there forty ways and nobody can take anything from him. Yet, I think I can beat him if get another chance. I'll be in far better shape next time."

cision that permitted him to read his title clear. The championship was vacated two years ago by Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., and Canzoneri established the new succession.

"WISE MONEY" BEATEN

The "wise money" took an awful lacing last night. Canzoneri was a 3-to-1 favorite at post time and thousands of dollars changed hands. One plunger cleaned up $12,000 by taking the short end.

The only knockdown occurred in the first round. Routis had been taking some heavy rights to the body and was making some wild lunges at the champion. He missed a right and fell to his hands and knees more from a push than a blow. He bounced up to his feet as the count reached two.

M'CABE, TOTH WIN AMATEUR MITT BOUTS

Five amateur boxing bouts were staged by the Old Home Week committee of East Pittsburgh during its celebration last night.

Dan McCabe, lightweight, shaded Thas Yaooz, in 3 rounds; John Toth, Willows Club, defeated Al Bonner, Homestead, after flooring him for counts of six and eight in the second round; Pete D'Allesandro, Washington Y, won over Buddy Forden, North Side, in three rounds, and Robert McDowell, Willow Club, won from Bob Smoller, North Side, in three rounds.

TWO BIG TEN TEAMS TO LIFT LID TODAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Two Big Ten Teams—Chicago and Indiana—will pry off the lid of the 1928 football season today in a non-Conference game which should give some indication of the strength they have developed after two weeks' practice.

South Carolina will invade the Chicago University camp with the advantage of already having broken the ice with a 10-to-0 victory over Erskine a week ago. In addition to the firststring eleven he has assembled a reserve squad which will meet Ripon in a nightcap session.

Indiana, with a Conference game scheduled with Michigan at Ann Arbor for October 13, will face Wabash at Bloomington today in the first test for both.

WESTINGHOUSE, SCHENLEY WIN

The scholastic football season got away to a definite start yesterday, three games being played in the City Senior League together with a number of other early-season non-league jousts being taken from the boards.

In Section I, of the City Loop, Schenley walloped Fifth Avenue, 52 to 0, while Westinghouse smothered South Hills under a 46 to 6 score. Oliver won over Carrick, 18-0, in a Section II battle.

Peabody, Aspinwall, Freeport, Ben Avon, Stowe Township, Oakmont, Duquesne, Washington and California were among the other high schools to triumph. Peabody won over Scott High of North Braddock, 6-0, on Williams' 80-yard run in the last quarter. The lineups:

play-off series which would start next week, before a so-called "subway series" for the world's baseball championship would be necessary.

When President John Heydler, of the National League, overruled the protest of the Giants concerning the first game of Thursday's doubleheader, he practically wrote out the ticket for the Cardinals to enter the world series. The New York National League club faces an almost insurmountable handicap, yet stranger things have happened in this topsy-turvy season than that John J. McGraw should bring his club through to another pennant.

If the Cardinals win today, or if the Giants lost, or both, the Sunday game, which brings the leading pennant contenders together at the Polo Grounds, will be as unnecessary as an Al Smith button on the East Side of New York.

Having clinched the American League pennant, the Yankees now have five days of badly needed rest before the post-season series for the world championship.

CABBIES ROBBED, THREE GIRLS HELD

WANTED: $325,000.00

HELD IN ENORMOUS BOND

Today three young girls of ordinary circumstances need $325,000 to gain their freedom and it would be only a temporary freedom at that. They were held to the grand jury, Chicago, in that bond, charged with robbing many taxicab drivers. They are Florence Morton, Irene Valentine and Marjorie Roberts.

MT. OLIVER VOTE NOV. 6 ON ANNEXATION BARRED

Mt. Oliver citizens will not vote on the question of annexation to Pittsburgh on presidential election day November 6, it was indicated by Judge James B. Drew, in Quarter Sessions court, yesterday.

Attorney Franklin A. Ammon had appeared for the petitioners to have a date fixed. Borough Solicitor Walter Wagner represented opponents.

Judge Drew declared the presidential election too important to have interest distracted by a borough controversy, and annexation of too much importance to Mt. Oliver to have it made a minor issue. He indicated that later a date would be set for a special election.

HOOVER THANKS OHIOAN FOR CAMPAIGN SONGS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 29.—Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for president, in a letter to Mrs. Harriet Thorn Rhodes yesterday, expressed his thanks for two songs which Mrs. Rhodes composed and contributed to the Republican national committee. The songs, both of which were accepted, are "Climbing Up the White House Stairs" and the other is "Hoover's March on Progress."

PORTAGE, Pa., Sept. 29. — Within 10 hours after funeral services had been held for his elder brother, John R. Moyer, 10, son of James P. Moyer, died suddenly of convulsions here Thursday night. SERGT. YORK GOES UNDER KNIFE, RESTING WELL NOW

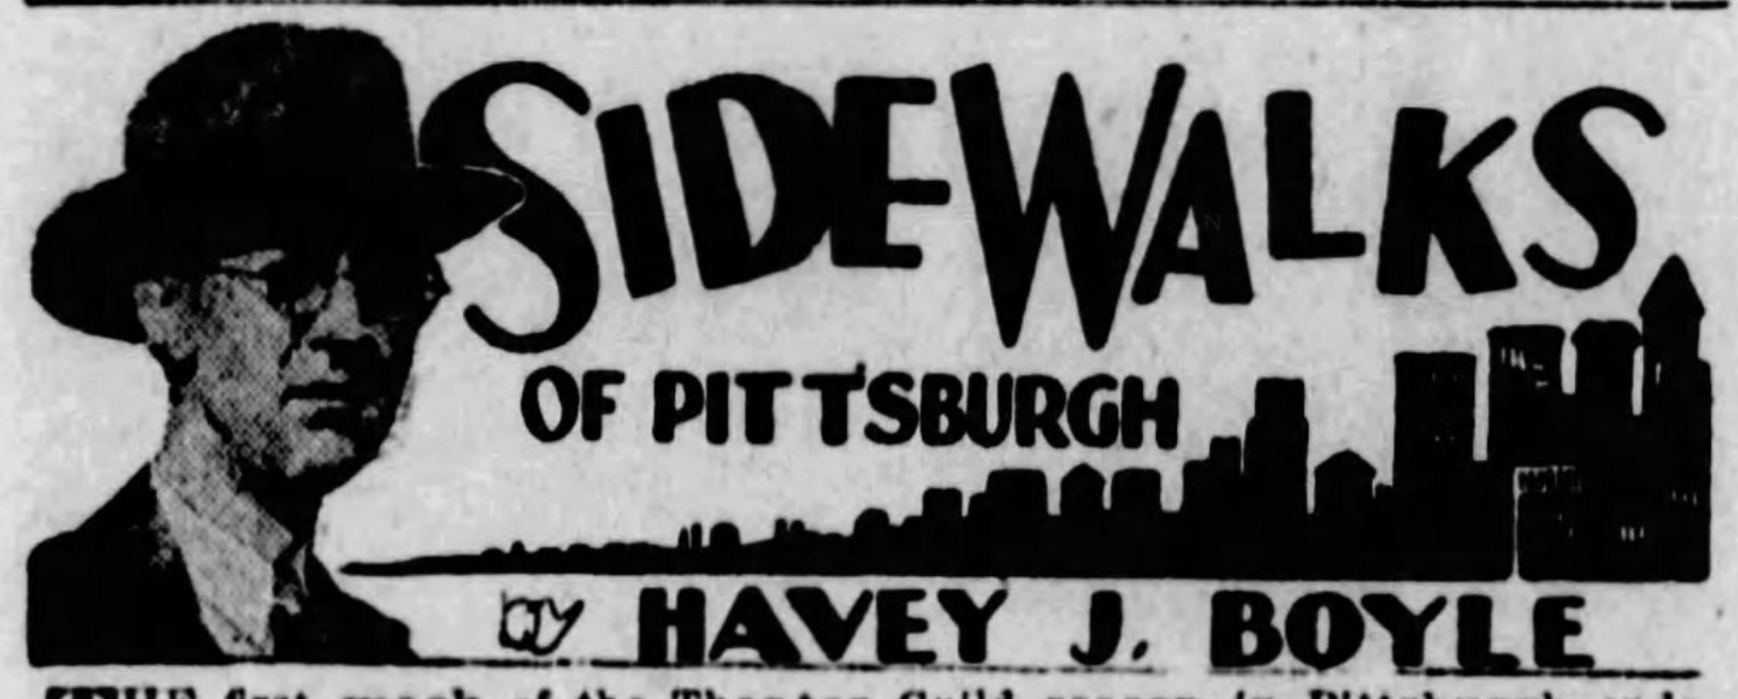
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Operated on for a stomach disorder, Sergt. Alvin C. York of Pall Mall, Tenn., outstanding American hero of the World War, was resting well at St. Thomas Hospital here today.

Attending physicians said Sergt. York's condition was not serious and that he underwent it successfully.

Since the war Sergt. York has devoted himself to the establishment of a school for mountain children in his native Fentress county. After many difficulties, the project was finally started last year. The school buildings are now nearing completion and pupils are to enter them within 60 days.



THE first week of the Theater Guild season in Pittsburgh ends tonight with the final presentation of "Marco Millions" at the Nixon. "Marco Millions" was written, along with about 15 other plays, by Eugene O'Neill, son of a well-known actor. The life of the author likely is as interesting as some of his plays for he, for a long time, walked the path of unsuccess. In "Marco Millions" one catches a glimpse of the despair of life and its meaning, if any, which must have come upon Eugene O'Neill when he was a sailor and later a sewing machine salesman in South America.

NOW - MY SEWING MACHINE IS - - - !

The Theater Guild, an organization founded in New York, has found great success, artistic and financial. The Guild took to nursing play-infants that might have been left forever on the doorstep of commercial theatrical interests. With a little backing they were able to take a chance on certain plays that would have scared the more professional producers away. The Guild endowed these plays with fine casts. After only one setback the Guild became self-supporting.

* * *

PITTSBURGH, judging from attendances this week, has taken up the Guild idea with enthusiasm—which means that yearly the best plays produced by the Guild will be seen here. The other night a speaker said that "Strange Interlude," the play that starts at 5:30 and takes time out for dinner, and then resumes until about 11:30 o'clock, may come this way.

TWO TICKETS FOR THE THEATER GUILD !
FINE - I'LL PACK A LUNCH !

Out of the Guild, theatrical fans get the same "kick" as baseball fans get out of Ruth; golfers get out of Jones; fight fans get out of Dempsey, and almost as much pleasure as housewives get out of a vacuum sweeper.

We like to look at plays to catch the author's view of life. In every good play the author strives to make a certain point. He may become a crusader for good, an indifferent observer of evil, or a neutral who admits the whole thing is beyond sane analysis. Through his characters he keeps building up his case whatever it is.

In "Marco Milions," for instance, O'Neill emphasizes how men rush through life, forever bothering about financial success, while overlooking what appears to the author to be the real artistry of living. Marco had a princess at his feet, and a world of delightful mystery to examine, but he was too busy breaking down sales resistance to bother about anything else. And he lived in the thirteenth century.

IN SPITE of the poetry of "Marco Millions," however, we liked better the other O'Neill play we saw quite awhile ago. "Anna Christie." Nothing "Marco Millions" did will remain as long in memory as the scene in "Anna Christie" when the father, anxious to put his own badly disordered moral house in order so that he would be prepared to meet his long-absent daughter, whom he thought was good in the conventional sense, discovered his daughter was herself a moral wreck.

* * *

This all is a little off our broad preserve, but we wanted to do something to create more interest for the Guild—both for the Guild's sake and for Pittsburgh's theatrical sake.

6 TELL OF HEALING BY FAITH

The healing service conducted by Evangelist John W. Sproul at the Glory Barn last night resulted in 35 persons "hitting the sawdust trail" and six others telling of physicial relief obtained through attendance. About 300 persons were present.

The services last night were held in one wing, while the huge barn is being completed. All during the night a large staff of carpenters was busy speeding the work so that the building may be finished for Sunday's service.

The converts last night went forward to the platform and engaged in prayer with Evangelist Sproul who asked that they continue on the new path that they had just chosen. The service marked the close of the first week, during which 250 persons professed conversion.

HEALED BY FAITH

The sermon of the evangelist last night was "The Faith hat Brings Healing." He said in part:

"The devil believes that God can heal, but that is not faith. Any agnostic might admit that God can heal but that is not faith in the New Testament sense.

"When we say. 'not only can God heal me but I also believe He will heal me,' we have the faith that grips God and get things from him, including forgiveness and healing.

'True faith has but one foundation—the word of God. Faith has nothing to do with feelings, impressions, improbabilities, outward appearances or symptons. We believe before we have any proof aside from God's promises.

"Faith without works is dead' and faith without appropiate actions is dead. The prisoner whom the judge declares to be free once more acts his faith by rising and walking out.

"Jesus says, the sick who have faith will recover. Thousands have tested Him and found Him true."

NEW BAR RULES TO BE HEARD

The first public announcement of the new rules of the State Supreme Court providing for the appointment of special master to govern the Bar of Pennsylvania will be made by Chief Justice Robert Von Moschzisker, of Philadelphia, at a banquet in his honor at the University Club October 5. The banquet is tendered by the Allegheny County Bar Association.

The chief justice and other justices have devoted much study in formulating the rules for registration of law students and admissions to the bar. The rules went into effect this year.

Chairman Arthur M. Scully is in charge of the executive committee arranging for the banquet. It is expected that Senator David A. Reed also will address the attorneys.

Taught Boys to Purloin Mail, Police Say

Accused of having encouraged small boys to steal parcels from mail trucks, Adam Minobsky, 31, proprietor of a grocery store at 33 South Nineteenth street, was arrested yesterday by Postal Inspector J. P. Nolan. He is being held pending action today by United States Attorney John D. Meyer.

The arrest of Minobsky was the result of police questioning Joseph Sleva, 15, of 9 Helen street, McKees Rocks. He had been arrested on the South Side for petty thefts from stores. Police say he told of having taken packages left by mail carriers at certain distributing centers along their routes and of disposing of the contents through Minobsky. Several other boys are being sought.

U.S. SPURNS NAVAL PACT

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Official and diplomatic circles today regard as one of the "most typically American documents in many decades" this country's note to France and Great Britain, made public last night, in which the United States sharply denounced and rejected the proposal from those governments that America become a party to their secret naval alliance.

This government, in almost as many words, declared the plan is designed to hamstring the American Navy while making that of Great Britain the most formidable in the world.

The United States bluntly charged that the Franco-British pact would place an unacceptable limitation on the class of vessels essential to this country's national defense and at the same time remove any limit on the classes of warships peculiarly suitable to the French and British needs.

Everyone in official circles here was amazed with the frankness of a declaration to maintain the American Navy is inferior to none and the unveiled expression of suspicion of the motives of the French and British.

BLOW TO U. S. NAVY

"The Government of the United States has earnestly and consistently advocated real reduction and limitation of naval armament," the note said. "It has given its best efforts towards finding acceptable methods of attaining this most desirable end.

"It would be happy to continue such efforts, but it cannot consent to proposals which would leave the door wide open to unlimited building of certain types of ships of a highly efficient combatant value and would impose restrictions only on those types peculiarly suitable to American needs."

In taking a firm stand for equal sea rights with any power in the world, it was declared:

"The American government seeks no special advantage on the sea, but clearly cannot permit itself to be placed in a position of manifest disadvantage."

DEFEATS ARMS REDUCTION

The American note, personally penned by President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg, after weeks of consultation with naval experts, pointed out why it is impossible to enter into a conference with the two powers. It continued:

"The American government feels, furthermore, that the terms of the Franco-British draft agreement, in leaving unlimited so large a tonnage and so many types of vessels, would actually tend to defeat the primary objective of any disarmament conference for the reduction or limitation of armament in that it would not eliminate competition in naval armament and would not effect economy.

"For all these reasons the government of the United States feels that no useful purpose would be served by accepting as a basis of discussion the Franco-British proposal."

It is declared that at the Geneva conference of 1927, called upon the invitation of President Coolidge, the British proposed to place a limit on the number of cruisers of 10,000 tons armed with six-inch guns, while fixing an extraordinarily large tonnage allowance on cruisers of smaller tonnage and mounting not to exceed six-inch rifles.

NO REAL LIMIT

"The limitation proposed by the British delegation on this smaller class of cruisers was so high that the American delegation considered it in effect no limitation at all. This same proposal is now presented in a new and even more objectionable form which still limits large cruisers, which are suitable to American needs, but frankly places no limitation whatever on cruisers carrying guns of six inches or less.

"This proposal is obviously incompatible with the American position. . . . Not only because it puts the United States at a decided disadvantage, but also because it discards altogether the principle of limitation as applied to combatant types of vessels."

SEEKS WARLESS WORLD

Throughout the document there is written a desire to bring about a warless and disarmed world. The sacrifices of the United States to that end are described. But it is tempered with a frank declaration that this country cannot in safety leave itself defenseless.

At the outset the note sets forth the British proposals in the secret alliance. They are for the limitation of ships of over 10,000 tons and larger than eight-inch guns; aircraft carriers or over 10,000 tons; surface vessels of or below 10,000 tons and armed with eight-inch guns; oceangoing submarines of over 600 tons.

NO SMALL CRAFT LIMIT

It is then pointed out that at the Washington armaments conference of 1921-22 ships in the first two classes were limited as to total and individual tonnage and that obviously the Franco-British proposal could fix a limit on only the two latter classes, that is cruisers of 10,000 tons and submarines in excess of 600 tons. There would be no limit on cruisers of the smaller class armed with six-inch guns and the small submarines.

The United States points out that cruisers armed with six-inch guns are a most formidable weapon of war, and that 600-ton submarines hurl the same size death-dealing torpedo as the larger submersibles and are equally as effective within their cruising radius.

"The agreement (secret pact) provides no limitation whatsoever on six-inch gun cruisers or submarines of 600 tons or less," the note continues.

"It could not be claimed that the types of vessels thus left without limitation are not highly efficient fighting ships. No one could deny that modern cruisers ared with six-inch guns have a very high offensive value, especially to any nation possessing well-distributed bases in various parts of the world. In fact, such cruisers constitute the largest number of fighting ships now existing in the world."

It was then emphasized that the Franco-British proposal to place a limit on cruiser armament to six-inch guns, and their tonnage to less than 7,500, would be "the imposition of restrictions only on types peculiarly suited to the needs of the United States. It is further clearly apparent that limitation of this type only would enormously add to the comparative offensive power of a nation possessing a large merchant tonnage on which preparation may be made in times of peace for mounting six-inch guns."

Much of what has been said about the British proposal to limit cruisers to a point where they would not possess the cruising radius required by a country with but few and widely separated naval bases, would apply also to limiting submarine of over 600 tons, the note explains as follows:

"Six hundred ton submarines are formidable combatant vessels. They carry the same torpedoes as are carried by larger submarines and of equal destructive force within the radius of their operation. They can also be armed with guns of five-inch caliber.

"The United States would gladly, in conjunction with all the nations of the world, abolish the submarine altogether. If, however, submarines must be continued as instruments of naval warfare, it is the belief of the American government that they should be limited to a reasonable tonnage or number.

"If there is to be further limitation upon the construction of war vessels so that competition in this regard between nations may be stopped, it is the belief of the United States that it should include all classes of combatant vessels, submarines as well as surface vessels."

LAWYER SEEKS VERONA'S JOB

Mayor Charles H. Kline has received the first known application for the vacancy caused by the discharge of Alderman John J. Verona as police magistrate of Center Avenue Police Station.

A delegation from the Hill district yesterday requested the place for Frank R. Steward, Negro attorney.

The oral request was accompanied by a petition signed by about 75 business and professional men of the Third and Fifth Wards and stated that Steward was a "soldier, lawyer and Harvard graduate."

Before receipt of the petition became known Kline stated that he had "given no thought" to the appointment of a successor to Verona.

How U. S. Denounces Sea Pact

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.

HIGH lights of the striking terms used by President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg in their note denouncing the secret naval alliance between France and Great Britain were:

"THE LIMITATION WOULD BE THE IMPOSITION OF RESTRICTIONS ONLY ON TYPES (OF SHIPS) PECULIARLY SUITED TO THE NEEDS OF THE UNITED STATES."

"It is further clearly apparent that it would only add enormously to the comparative offensive power of a nation possessing a large merchant tonnage." (The British.)

"THE LIMITATION PROPOSED BY THE BRITISH DELEGATION (AT THE LAST GENEVA CONFERENCE) WAS IN EFFECT NO LIMITATION AT ALL."

"This same proposal is now presented in a new and even more objectionable form."

"IT IS EVEN MORE UNACCEPTABLE BECAUSE IT NOT ONLY PUTS THE UNITED STATES AT A DECIDED DISADVANTAGE, BUT ALSO BECAUSE IT DISCARDS ALTOGETHER THE PRINCIPLE OF LIMITATION."

"The United States cannot consent to proposals which would leave the door wide open to unlimited building of certain types of ships of a highly efficient combatant value and would impose restrictions only on types suitable to American needs."

"THE UNITED STATES SEEKS NO SPECIAL ADVANTAGE ON THE SEA, BUT CLEARLY CANNOT PERMIT ITSELF TO BE PLACED IN A POSITION OF MANIFEST DISADVANTAGE."

INDICT OFFICER FOR MURDER

George Roma, a sub-policeman, was indicted on a charge of murder in a true bill returned yesterday by the grand jury.

The charge was preferred by Lawrence Graves of the Hill district who was with Edward L. Travis, a Negro of Soho street, killed June 17 at Logan street and Wylie avenue. Roma had been exonerated by the coroner's jury on the ground that the Negro resisted arrest.

James Swide, another sub patrolman, was indicted on a similar charge Monday in connection with the same case.

WHAT is a wallflower? The dictionary tells us that it is a "woman who, at a ball or party, stands by the wall alone; presumably for lack of a partner." Well, mebbeso—but here I show you four of the loveliest wallflowers I've ever seen and they don't look lonesome, or alone, or lacking for partners, do they?

They're just "playing pretend," as they used to when they were wee, little girls. And perhaps they've just chosen the wall for a resting place after their strenuous activities of the Summer.

It's nice to be a wallflower occasionally, for it gives one a much-needed rest, but most of the wallflowers I know are self-imposed ones. They are such from choice, not necessity.

There's a wistful, silent streak in every little lovely lady in the world that makes her want, on occasion, to just stay on the side lines and watch the festivities. If you ask her why, she'll probably give you the age-old answer of "Because." But there's a reason for it, you know. She likes to stop and watch the gay procession every once in awhile, as it gives her a chance to get her breath and look for Love. And that's exactly what these pretty things are doing.

Watching over the garden wall for Love to come riding down the road and pick them off one by one and then—well—! No, they won't wither and die like the really, truly wallflowers do when they are transplanted to foreign soil. They'll bloom and be lovelier than ever, for Love's magic will change the pretty little wallflowers into gorgeous lilies and roses and tulips, and you'll wonder why in the world you ever thought of them as shy, retiring little things. That's a way Love has, you know.

So don't pity my wallflowers. Rather envy them, for I know they're going to be gorgeously and joyously happy.

Benny Realizes That He Made a Grave Mistake By Marrying Ann

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

On his first day in Manor Park, where he is to apply the business methods learned in college, Benjamin Carrington Black has occasion to observe three of the suburban town's most alluring examples of feminity. Unnoticed by men, he sees Dianna Rand—nineteen and pretty, enter a jewelry store with her friend, Beatrice Sheldon, whose trailing dress is reminiscent of the Gay Nineties. In the store Diana and Bea encounter Ann Evarts, a trim, petite person. Ann in Diana's roadster sees Noddy and Toddy and Norman Gregory and leaves Diana and Beatrice to join them. Bea and her brother, Freddie, prepare for the party at the Yacht Club. Benny also attends the party where Diana and her friends meet him. Benny is fascinated by the quiet Ann, who makes believe that she does not like "wild" parties. Diana, after the party, tells her mother all about Benny. She meets him several times and falls in love with him. Mrs. Evarts is anxious that her daughter, Ann, fall in love with Benny. However, he is afraid he is falling in love with Diana. Ann tells Norman that Beatrice has a past. At North Lake where the crowd are for a week, Norman questions Bea about her past and she confesses. Later they get married. Diana dreams of the future when Benny professes his love for her. Diana is heartbroken when she receives an invitation to Ann and Benny's wedding. Benny and Ann get married and leave for a long honeymoon abroad. They return from their honeymoon. Freddie visits Ann on the same day she returns from her honeymoon, but Benny is unaware of this. Norman deserts Beatrice.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

A SLOW smile spread Hanna's lips as she answered in a calm, almost bored way: "Are you, really, my dear, I wouldn't say so. There's certain little matters I know about which makes me think you're not through. I haven't mentioned them before, but . . . . A broad-minded husband you've got, eh? Still, I doubt if even his broadmindedness would stretch without limits. That afternoon at Green Hills Inn, eh? And the night he was out of town—right here in his own home, eh? Well?"

Ann swung about, livid with rage and fear. "So you did spy on me!" she spat out. That's what you did, you——"

Hanna raised a hand, laughed slyly. "Never mind, my dear. I'm not criticizing. Though how you can fancy a tank like Sheldon! Think you're flirting with the divorce court, if you want my opinion—which of course you don't. Now, let's see—"

She got up in a leisurely manner, stepped into the bedroom and began to open doors of the closets which ran along one entire side of the room. Sports clothes in one, evening gowns and wraps in another, afternoon frocks in a third, the fourth filled to bursting with lingerie.

Everything exquisite, incredibly expensive, totally unlike the clothing Ann had worn before her marriage, in that these were stamped with a smart sophistication, a provocative day-after-tomorrow look rather grotesque in its exaggeration.

While Ann looked on, speechless for once, her mother held the garments under her chin, turning this way and that before the mirror, only to put them aside regretfully when she decided that no amount of making over would fit them to her bulk.

On the dresser, however, was a little pile of bracelets, those narrow circlets of jewels which were the vogue of the day. There were eight in all, and they gleamed white and green in Hanna's stocky fingers.

"Dear me," she remarked, "how kind Benny is to buy such things for you! Real stones, too!"

"Oh, take one and be done with it!" Ann flung at her. "He doesn't buy them. They're service stripes—one for each month of this fool marriage—and I bought them myself. Take one and get out of here."

"Well, if you insist," Hanna slid a circlet over her wrist. But as she was about to leave she could not resist a peek into a half-open drawer, nor could she keep from thrusting her fingers into a pile of hosiery, stealthily extracting a couple of pairs of stockings.

She was not to get away with this, however. Ann was at her like a fury, clawing and jerking. It was a repetition of the scene which had taken place eight months ago before the party at the Yacht Club on the night Ann met Benny Black—save that now the women actually did pull the stockings to shreds in their struggles. But when this was over, Hanna triumphantly helped herself to another pair, tucking it into her bag with a smile.

"Better not try that again, my dear. As I said before, there are certain little matters I'm sure you wouldn't like your kind husband to know about. Well, goodby for now."

She went out, laughing; and her daughter remained there motionless, cold with fury.

While such things happened at his home, Benny Black sat before his desk in the office of the shoe factory and tried to think. He was not always successful in this, however, for more and more as time ran along he felt himself caught and held by a curious bewilderment, a numbness which seemed to wind his head and prevent any real celebration.

What it was that puzzled him so he could not understand. To know this, he felt, would be to solve the mystery. For it was a mystery; all of life had become that.

There was his wife, for instance; her impressionable moods, her extravagance. Yes, Ann was selfish! This much, at least, he sure of. Self was the dominant trait of her character. And greed. Yet . . .

Even while he realized this he imagined her in his arms, softly gentle creature that she was in her rare moments of lovableness. The thought of her stole over his senses like a drug, lulling his doubts to rest, striking down what resistance he attempted to raise against her growing domination.

Another mystery was concerned with Ann's complaints that everybody had dropped her since her marriage. She, once the most popular girl in Manor Park, as she declared, now was practically outcast—and all because she had married Benny Black!

"But that can't be true, dear," he had urged only the night before. "Nobody has anything against me, you know. So I don't see"——

"Oh, of course you don't!" she had cried then, jerking out of his arms. "It's all that Diana Rand—that's what! She's in love with you—always was—and she's getting even! Called everybody off to make me look silly because she wanted you herself!"

He had said: "That will do, Ann," and gone out to walk about the streets.

Benny did not believe this. Also he was beginning to suspect the young people of Manor Park left his wife to herself because they did not like her. Of course the child was an egoist, but that alone would not stand in her way. There must be other reasons, ones he did not guess at as yet.

Sometimes he wondered if Ann occasionally had a cocktail during the long afternoons she said she spent alone in the apartment.

There had been times when he was almost sure of alcohol on her breath, notably on one occasion when they had been going out in the evening and he came home to find her in bed, ill, she told him, with headache. He had leaned over to kiss her, only to straighten up, wondering. . . . Perhaps she had guessed his thought, for she explained quickly that she had taken headache medicine.

In a drawer of his desk he came upon the sketches he had made the night after the Yacht Club ball; sketches of little dancing slippers with wings at the heels. Diana Rand!

Benny saw Diana seldom; caught rare glimpses of her here and there, going about like a slim flash of light. Gossip, whispers, lies—had they been lies, those stories he had listened to about Diana Rand? Stories which had frozen his heart to the laughing, curly-haired kid with the honest eyes?

Upon Benny Black was beginning to dawn the conviction that he had been a fool.

CHAPTER XXIV.

ONCE again Beatrice and Diana were in the room of the mirrors, inspecting, rather absently, the whirling statuette of the dancing girl. They looked at the gracious little figure without quite seeing it as they talked in low voices, softly, as if they spoke of the dead.

And this they were doing, indeed—speaking of dead hopes, dead aspirations, dead happiness. Beatrice was going to leave Norman, she told her friend. Her happiness had gone out like a lovely dream, and only bitterness remained.

"Living together like prisoners, chained by love that has turned to fear. Oh, Di! Watching every word I say, suspecting every move I make . . . It comes of being square; of trying and trying the best I know. They don't understand that, men don't. Look at Ann! She's happy, selling out her husband every day of her life, and he adores her! That's the way. Remember it if ever you fall in love again. Be spiteful and lying and cheating; that's what they want. It's what men expect of women."

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

ALL THE WAYS OF A MAN

HOW "primitive," oh my Daughter, are the ways of a woman! But all the ways of a man are "enlightened," in his own eyes.

* * *

Behold, a woman considereth, first her political convictions; and thereafter concludeth to which party she belongeth and for which candidate she will vote.

* * *

But a man, first, picketh his party and chooseth his candidate—and then discovereth his political opinions.

HELEN ROWLAND

A woman beginneth by cajoling, and resorteth to bullying only when all wheedling and coaxing have failed.

* * *

But a man beginneth by storming and blustering—and endeth by apologizing and letting the woman have her own way.

* * *

A woman anointeth and brusheth her hair to keep it thick and luxurious. But a man waiteth until his hair hath departed—and then proceedeth to coax it back again, with tonics and prayers and "magic cures."

* * *

A woman spendeth the days of her youth in filling her hope chest and seeking a husband—and taketh marriage as a foregone conclusion. But a man spendeth his youth dodging matrimony—and is felled with astonishment when he findeth himself facing the altar.

* * *

A woman consumeth an hour in preparing to retire at night—and is arrayed and waiting for breakfast within 20 minutes.

* * *

But a man spendeth two minutes in tumbling into bed at night—and an hour in assembling his clothes, the next morning.

* * *

A woman wasteth three days in shopping for a garment which she will, peradventure, wear but three times. But a man spendeth three minutes in selecting a coat which he shall, peradventure, wear for three seasons.

* * *

A woman counteth all comely women and all office vamps her rivals, until they have proved themselves innocent.

But a man counteth no man his rival, until his sweetheart hath eloped with his best friend or his wife hath eloped with his chauffeur.

A woman starteth out in search of her Ideal Man—and endeth by marrying whatsoever the fates deal out to her.

* * *

But a man starteth out by marrying the first pair of knees or the first dimple which taketh his fancy—and spendeth all the rest of his life in searching for his Ideal Woman!

Verily, verily, the ways of a woman ARE simple. For she seeth what she wanteth and goeth after it!

* * *

But a man knoweth not WHAT he desireth, until love or fate or a woman overtaketh him. And then he knoweth that he wanted something ELSE!

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Mystery at the Shack Near the Farmhouse

THAT Lillian was unusually worried over possible danger to us at the farmhouse, I knew as she walked up and down the veranda waiting for Jim's return from the station. It is the only exhibition of nervousness she ever gives, and it is an action which I rarely have witnessed. When we saw the car returning, driven at a rate of speed rare with Jim, she hurried to the kitchen door with me at her heels, patently intent upon talking to him as soon as he stopped the car.

But to our great surprise he did not stop. Instead he continued past the house and the barn, and turned into the narrow lane, little more than a pasture path, leading to the top of the hill from which a wood road saunters to the main road. Just beyond the crest of the hill is the shack in which were housed the men we so feared and with one of whom Dicky had so unexplainable and incomprehensible an acquaintance.

"Well! I'll be—fried in olive oil!" Lillian exclaimed—then as her eyes fell upon my car, she caught me by the hand and made a dash for it.

"Start that as quickly as the Lord will let you," she commanded. "This is no time for splitting hairs. I'm going to find out what Jim is doing up there."

I climbed to the driver's seat and she tumbled in beside me as I bent to the switch. In another half minute we were climbing the hill in Jim's wake.

"Catch up to him and keep right behind him," she said. I saw Jim turn his head at our approach, and then he slackened speed and, stopping at the top of the hill, came back to us and doffed his hat with the respectful stolidity which characterized our faithful man of all work.

"Did you want me, ma'am?" he asked. "The car seemed to act a little funny coming home and I thought I'd run it up this hill and see how it took it."

He spoke the words exactly as if they were a sentence learned by heart, and as I looked steadily at him I saw his cheeks redden painfully. Jim is the most honest soul alive, but I was convinced that for some reason he was not giving the real reason for his trip up the hill.

"Well, did it take it?" Lillian demanded crisply.

"Oh, yes."

"Then you won't have to waste any more time over it," she said. "Please go on down and we'll follow. There's something you must do for us right away, something very necessary."

Jim hesitated perceptibly, then without a word got into Dicky's car, turned it around and drove down the road he just had ascended. As we followed him, Lillian spoke one word explosively.

"Dicky!"

"You think?" I began.

"Of course. Never in this world could Jim think of any excuse like that on the spur of the moment. Dicky's sent him with some message to the red-headed man and instructed him what to say if we saw him. There's the bare possibility Dicky told him to test the car that way, but it's ridiculous on the face of it when there's a dandy hill only a quarter of a mile out of his way on the other road from Bridgehampton. Well, all's fair in love and war and dealing with the Dicky-bird at this particular time. Katie hasn't gone to the movies yet. Let's make a call at the kitchen after I talk to Jim."

She made short work of her interview with him, telling him only that she had information from the city that there were dangerous prowlers around because of her work, and that she was in temporary danger. Then she sent him in to telephone for some friend to stay at night at the farmhouse until Dicky returned, and Jim, to whom Lillian's work is as mysterious and important and uncomprehended as the movements of the spheres, went to the telephone in the hall, while Lillian and I faced Katie in the kitchen.

"Katie," I began placatingly, under Lillian's instructions, "I'm afraid I can't spare you to go to the movies tonight."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator from New York

Air and Sky-Shine Add Years to Life

WHY is it that sensible men and women, leaders of thought, engineers of public sentiment, teachers and preachers—why is it that they are willing meekly to endure an atmosphere of dust, smoke and germs? Why will they live in filth, breathing contaminated and disease-producing air?

DR. COPELAND

I sometimes say that educated people know everything except how to live. They know, appreciate and apply values, except such as relate to good health and long life.

It isn't enough merely to live to be 80. To be active and effective at that age is far more important. Nobody wants to shuffle along, dragging dead or dying members, robbing the undertaker of his overdue employment. When the elasticity of muscles and springiness of gait are gone, what is left of the body is hardly worth keeping.

You don't need to break down ahead of schedule. It is within your power to fend off that evil day and to prolong your usefulness indefinitely.

I firmly believe that the average man can add years to his expectancy of life. He cannot do it by crooking his forefinger twice a day. But he can do it by observing a few simple rules of personal hygiene.

What are these rules?

The first one relates to fresh air and sky-shine. There is no excuse to be without the former. I would rather have sunshine than to get along with sky-shine. But sometimes it is impossible to have sunshine, while sky-shine is always available.

Man could not live in a thermos bottle. Neither can he long survive an atmosphere as dead and lifeless as would be found in a giant thermos bottle. Why will men and women suffer the atmospheric hazzards of the average business office?

Recently I saw a Senate committee room, heretofore unlivable, converted into a place of sweet, clean air. There are two windows, each with a transom. An electric fan was fitted into a round opening in each transom. One fan directed a current of air inwards and the other blew it outwards. In this simple manner there was established a circulation of pure air without dangerous drafts.

There are other methods of ventilation, but I have little faith in a single one of them as the sole means of sustaining life and energy. There must be not only clean air to breathe, but also the body must be bathed in the stimulating and life-giving rays of light from sun or sky.

Light possesses qualities which are essential to the highest physical welfare, as well as to the mental alertness. Push up the shades and get all you can of the beneficient effects of skyshine and sunshine. If you work habitually at night, demand modern illumination, a scientific substitute for sunshine.

You will be better men and women if you live close to nature's heart. You cannot thrive physically if you disregard the rules of hygiene.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MARY'S SHARE

By GERALD HUNT.

MORSE GRANGER gazed penetratingly at Mrs. Annie Walters, then at Mrs. Mabel Reid, then at Archibald Townsend, then back to Mrs. Annie Walters. The latter was doing most of the talking. She was a florid, hard-faced woman of uncertain age, but undoubtly past 40. Her sister, Mrs. Reid, slightly older, was a shriveled widow with a dry skin and brittle, faded hair. Archibald Towsend, the brother of the two women, was one of those nondescript individuals to whom nobody pays any attention. He put in a grunt or two occasionally, to punctuate the remarks of Mrs. Walters, but aside from this, he was as negilgible as an odd stick of furniture.

"It ain't for myself, you understand, Mr. Granger," Mrs. Walters went on in her whining voice, "but I got my children to think of. Four children, and that's a handful, let me tell you. And if I don't fight for my children, it'll be the same as takin' bread outer their mouths, now won't it?" she asked, in a wheedling tone, as she smirked at the embarrassed and silent young lawyer.

He was depressed, utterly weary of this trio. Their vulgarity, their pettiness made him feel almost physically ill.

His patience finally at end, he stemmed Mrs. Walters' interminable loquacity, by announcing emphatically and decisively:

"I'm afraid I can't help you people. I don't see any imperative reason for trying to break your uncle's will."

"But we are his own flesh and blood!" wailed Mrs. Walters as if that answered every objection.

"Yes, we're the children of his very own sister!" added Mrs. Reid crisply.

Archibald grunted twice, signifying his agreement.

"But your uncle, William Bancroft, has left you each $5,000. Why should you object to the fact that he left the remaining $3,000 to this—this adopted daughter of his, Miss Mary Bancroft? He was evidently very fond of her and wished to provide for her—"

Mrs. Reid sniffed.

Smirking, Mrs. Walters leaned over close to Morse Granger with the air of being about to impart some very choice and secret scandal.

"Do you know who she really is?" she asked in a whisper. "Well, her mother was just a servant girl. Imagine that. A servant girl!" she repeated unctuously, licking her pudgy lips.

Morse Granger did not at all want to know, and seeing that Mrs. Walters was prepared to elucidate with further sordid details, he forestalled her:

"My good woman, all this is beside the point!" He spoke as one speaks to an inferior, but she did not notice this. "The significant fact is merely that your dead uncle thought enough of this waif he adopted to leave her $3,000. I understand that the girl is alone in the world. Her mother is dead?"

Mrs. Walters nodded jerkily.

"Uncle William has taken care of her ever since her mother died nine years ago. He spent enough money on her, Lord knows, sending her to a toney school and what not! And it ain't fair for her to have the money that don't belong to her by rights. She's no kin. Her havin' that three thousand would be takin' it away from us as it belongs to."

"I'm afraid I don't agree with you, Mr. Granger said, his temper rising. "It seems to me your uncle was exceedingly generous in leaving you each five thousand." He looked at them, but saw that the irony of his remark was totally lost on them.

"He was always good to Uncle William," purred Mrs. Reid.

"While that brat of a girl never did nothin' but spend his money for him," amended Mrs. Walters, vindictively.

Morse Granger saw that he was no nearer to getting rid of these unwanted visitors than he had been an hour previous. Having important work to attend to, he decided to resort to a ruse to bring this painful interview to a close.

"Remember, I'm not promising anything," he said, "but I'll get in touch with Miss Bancroft and lay your complaints before her; perhaps some arrangement can be made."

With this they had to be satisfied, for he immediately got up and ushered them out, so that they could find no further excuse for staying.

Alone once more, he sat down at his desk with a sigh of relief. Before plunging into his work, he gave one more fleeting thought to the trio who had just left:

"How anyone in his right senses could leave them one red cent, let alone five thousand apiece is beyond me."

Morse Granger had not had the slightest intention of getting in touch with Mary Bancroft. As executor of William Bancroft's will, he felt it perfectly just that this motherless girl should have $3,000 as her share. In fact, he went further and wondered why she had not been left more, and the nephew and nieces less. This surely would have been a more equitable arrangement.

It was greatly to his surprise therefore, when one afternoon, three days later, his secretary announced that Miss Mary Bancroft would like to see him.

The young lawyer, though he had known William Bancroft well, had never met his adopted daughter.

The girl entered the room shyly. She was a slight, frailly-built little thing, and looked only about 20, though he knew she must be older than that. She was rather pale, and her straight, straw-colored hair seemed to be a soft frame for her delicate cameo-like face.

"Are you Mr. Granger?" she asked.

"Yes. And so you are Miss Bancroft. Please sit down, won't you?"

She smiled gratefully at him, and he saw that her eyes were a vivid sea-blue.

"I—I don't know whether I really ought to have come to you," she began hesitatingly. "You see, I—I'm on the point of doing something, and I'm not sure whether it would be a crime or not." He gave a start of surprise as she said this, in a calm, matter-of-fact voice. "I want your advice," she went on, "though I'm not sure that I'll follow it, after you give it to me—"

Morse Granger grinned.

"You have the privilege of rejecting it," he declared.

"I know my—my dear father always trusted you," she spoke now, with a little catch in her voice. "He often told me how honest and fair you are, about everything."

Morse Granger bowed, smilingly.

"That's why I finally got up enough courage to come to you," she explained. She opened her handbag and drew out a crumpled sheet of paper, spreading it on the desk in front of him. He read it quickly, then more carefully.

When he looked up at her, there was a quizzical expression in his face.

"Where did you find this?" he said.

"Well, you see, after father died, I was going over the house and getting things in shape to—to close it up, you know. I was examining the mattress that had been on his bed, and I felt something inside and pulled it out."

"You know, don't you, that this is a duly executed will, and dated six months after the one which has been taken to be Mr. Bancroft's last will. In other words, this is perfectly valid. I didn't know of its existence until this moment."

Mary nodded.

"And this will, your adopted father's last will, leaves you his entire fortune!" As he said the words, Morse Granger felt a thrill of exultation. What a come-back for that avaricious trio of vultures, that smug nephew and those gabbing nieces!

He was surprised to see that Mary's eyes were full of tears.

"That's why I'm going to burn it up," she said. "I trust you not to tell anyone about it. You and I are the only ones that know."

"But why were you going to burn it up?"

For some moments she did not answer. A flush had come into her cheeks. Finally, she said, speaking so that he could barely catch the words:

"Father had a quarrel with his nephew and nieces. There were bad feelings on both sides. But, oh, I'm sure none of them meant it!" she cried vehemently. "You see, they are his own flesh and blood. I could not bear to think of his leaving them most of the money. I am—just an orphan he was kind to. I wouldn't want them to think meanly of him because of me. I couldn't endure that. Don't you understand," she ended, pleadingly.

"Then you wish the other will to stand?"

"Yes I'll take $3,000. It's more than enough for me. I'm glad they will have most of the money. I wouldn't want any of it, if it wasn't—" she paused, then, raising her head, went on, bravely," —if it wasn't that I'm delicate and must go West. The doctor told me I must have a change."

Morse Granger looked at her steadily. There was something so radiant, so noble about this slip of a girl that he found himself regarding her almost with awe.

"Three thousands dollars won't carry you very far," he advised, at length.

"Oh, that's all I'll need," she assured him, "I will live very simply, and when I'm well enough, I'll get a job, of course."

He handed her back the will.

"Burn it if that is what you want to do, he said, "but I think you are being foolish. These relatives don't deserve the money half as much as you do."

She smiled, as she tucked the will back into her pocket.

"Perhaps you don't know them very well,' she said. "They really aren't bad, when you know them. I don't want them to think I'm taking anything that belongs to them. I—I feel so sorry for them." she admitted. "You see, they have nothing from my dear father but money while I—I have so many beautiful, loving memories."

She got up and was thanking him, when he took one slender hand in his.

"I wonder," he said, "I wonder what it would be like, to have a friend a girl like you?"

"I'll be glad to have you for a friend." she answered simply. "Nothing really counts in life, except people one cares about.'

Then she went as quietly as she had [illegible]

"Mary Bancroft . . . ." mused Morse Granger. And with the idea of Mary came another idea, which, at first, did not seem to have any direct connection. The other idea was:

"This summer I'm simply going to have a real vacation, I'm going West, that's what.' Then he saw the connection and made it: "I'm going west to visit my friend. To visit Mary Bancroft—"

The local program to be heard by KDKA listeners will include programs of music, sport events and educational talks. This evening at 7:15 o'clock Prof. Robert B. Leighou, associate director of the night course of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, will discuss the subject "Pittsburgh Employers as College Deans."

Most of the college football teams will be in action this afternoon. As in past years KDKA will broadcast from the studio, scores of many of the games.

Beginning at 9:30 o'clock this evening, a community program sponsored by Washington, Pa., will be broadcast through Station KDKA. The artists who will present the program are all prominent in musical circles of Washington.

Another 60-minute entertainment in the series of "Variety Hours" featuring Mildred Hunt, contralto crooner, Merle Johnston's saxophone quartet and the "Serenaders" will be broadcast through WCAE tonight at 9 o'clock.

Miss Hunt will croon "Just a Little Bit of Driftwood" by Marcy, and Gershwin's "The Man I Love," the saxophone quartet offers "Manhattan Serenade" by Alter, and Ramsen's "Song Birds and Roses," and the Serenaders will harmonize with "Half Way to Heaven" and "Crazy Rhythm" from "Here's Howe."

Grieg's "Sonata in E Minor" will be played by Godfrey Ludlow, violinist, and Mme. Lolita Cabrera Gainsborg, pianist, during the program to be broadcast through KDKA at 8:30 p. m.

The third broadcast of the Lucky Strike Hour through WCAE comes on the air tonight at 10 o'clock. Selections will be played by the largest band orchestra ever heard on the air. The program consists exclusively of dance music and the following numbers will be played: "This Is My Lucky Day," "The Dance of the Blue Danube," "Get Out and Get Under the Moon," "Dancing Tambourine," "Jumping Jack," "Ida," "Rolly-Bolly Eyes," "Oh! Didn't It Rain," "La Veeda," "Spain," "Back In Your Own Back Yard," "My Ohio Home," "Grieving," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," "Ten Little Miles From Town," "Hiawatha," "Georgia Camp Meeting," "Moving Day in Jungle Town," "You Took Advantage of Me," "One Step to Heaven," and "This Is My Lucky Day."

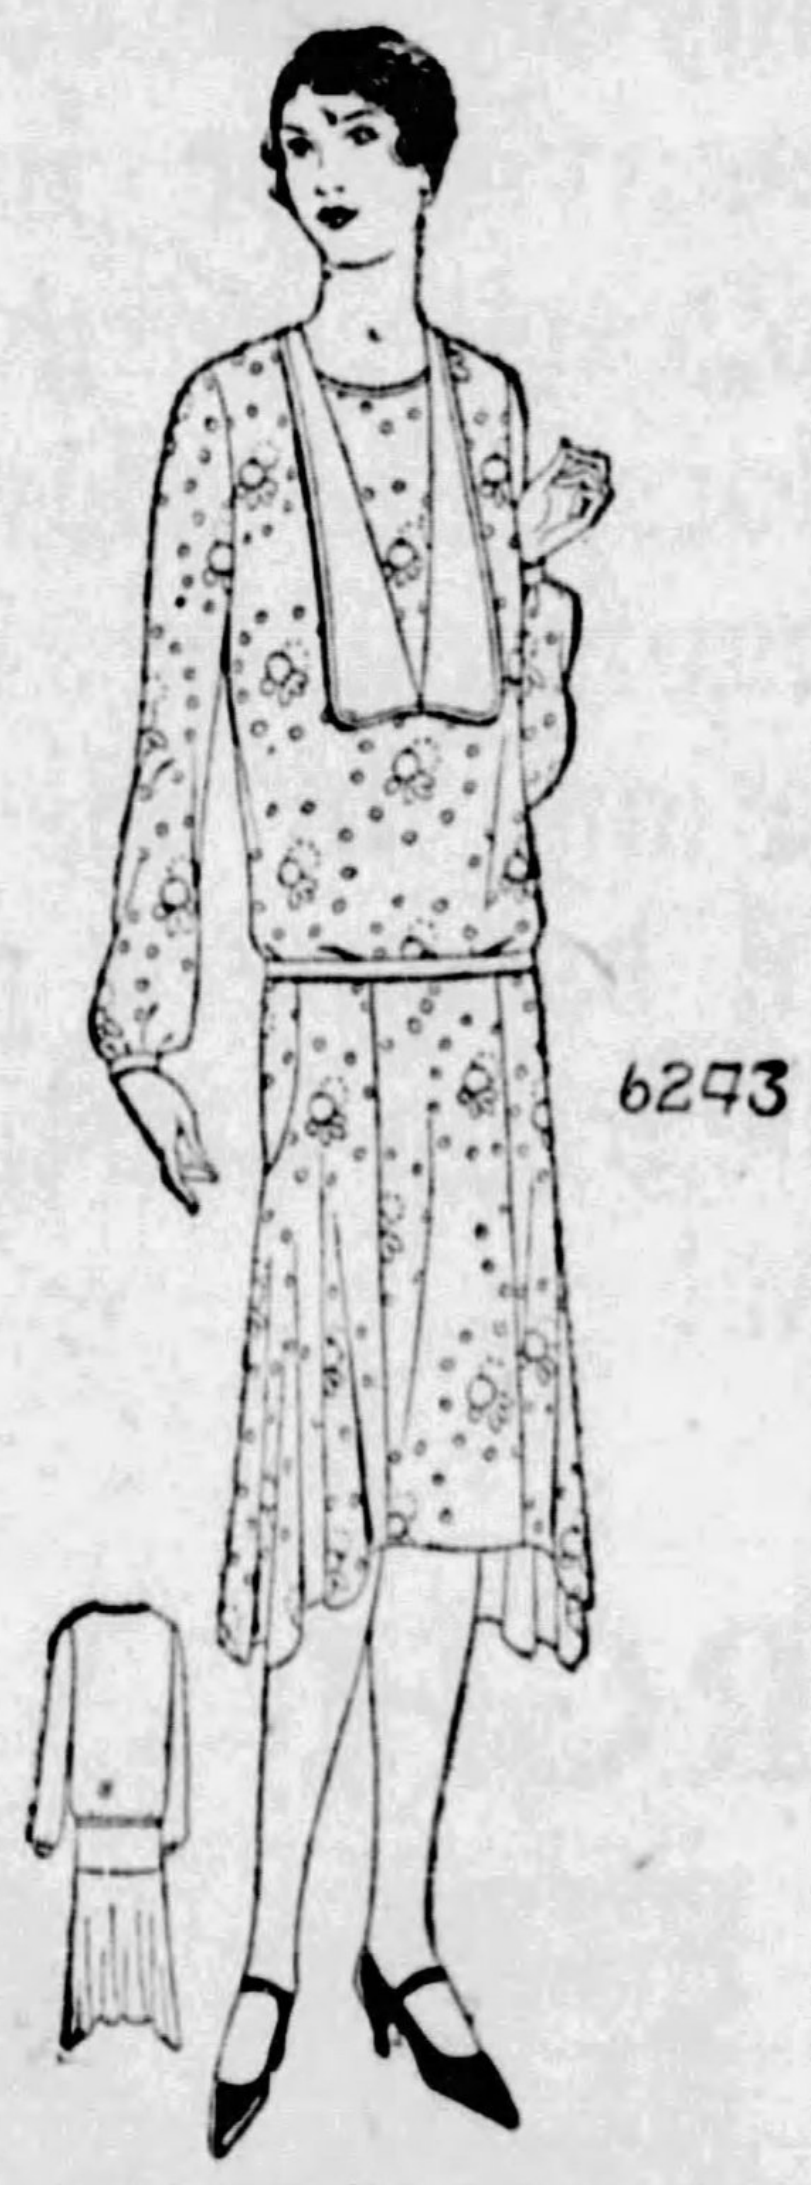
The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A DISTINCTIVE DESIGN.

This model is pictured in figured and plain silk. It is also pleasing in Canton crepe, or in crepe satin, with the reverse side of the material used for facings. In wool georgette or wool crepe it is nice with facings of satin. A camisole underbody holds the waist with slight blousing. The skirt is made with a narrow front panel and flare side and back portions to which a fitted yoke is joined. Shaped revers embellish the waist front. The sleeve is a favorite style gathered to a narrow cuff at the wrist.

The pattern for this attractive style is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 1 yard of 32-inch lining for the underbody, 4¼ yards of 35-inch material together with 1¼ yards of contrasting material for facings on revers, cuffs and belt, and for underfacing on the flare portions of the skirt. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fulness extended is 2¼ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Liquor Law Trips Alien Seeking Citizenship

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 29.—Ross Riccardell, of Bellaire, was ordered held on a perjury charge in Belmont County Court yesterday during naturalization hearings.

Riccardell testified he had never been arrested. Dry raiders who followed him on the stand said he had been fined $100 a year ago on a liquor charge.

His application was dismissed.

SHALER PEOPLE SEEK BOROUGH

More than 200 residents of Elfinwild, meeting in the schoolhouse there, last night added their approval to the project to form a new borough within Shaler township. The movement is a result of the refusal of the township commisioners to act favorably on a petition presented by residents of Elfinwild, Glenshaw and Undercliff for a new sewerage system.

Make Workers Directors; Mergers May be Boomerangs.

By B. C. FORBES

WELL inside of 10 years every progressive company will do what the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has just done. It has made one of its wage-earners a director. In this instance the man chosen is president of the company's labor union.

This column has strongly urged all corporations to admit representatives of their employes to the directorate. By having one of themselves on the board, wage-earners are given a new status, so to speak. It admits them into the inmost workings of the organization. It betokens faith in them. It gives them a new dignity.

Experience in most instances will prove that such recognition is productive of happy results to all parties. It will inspire a greater feeling of responsibility on the part of the workers. It will help to make them feel that they are part and parcel of the enterprise, vitally interested in its well-being.

The best method would be to allow the workers to choose their own board representative. This will come.

Of course, giving labor representation on the directorate will not bring on the millennium: but it is one of many little and big things which can be done and will be done to bring about closer and more cordial relations wherever the motives of the management are right.

PLAYING with boomed stocks at these dizzy prices is, in the writer's humble opinion, playing with fire. Almost every dabbler in stocks that I know confesses his hope is to snatch a profit and run before trouble breaks out.

THE first fruit of the merging of Greater New York's four electric utilities is the prompt announcement by President Matthew S. Sloan of a reduction in charges which will save consumers, it is officially figured, $4,500,000. And Mr. Sloan intimates that this is only a beginning of advantages the public will reap.

The American public have become convinced that mergers usually can be made advantageous to the concerns merged. But they are not convinced that all mergers benefit them.

If trouble is to be avoided, merger-makers must do more than they have yet done to bring home to the people that their activities really are helpful to consumers. In the end, public sentiment will rule.

Consolidations have been stopped and others have been dissolved in the past because of public demand. The same thing can happen again—and will happen if ambitious capitalists plan and scheme solely for their own pockets and leave the public out in the cold, worse off than before.

SEVERAL years ago I was privileged to address the annual convention of our utility men and, assuming the role of John Smith, I warned the industry's leaders that I and other rank-and-file citizens were giving them an abundance of rope, but were going to watch results most vigilantly. I told them that we consumers were not particularly interested in the fine things the merger-makers said, and added: "We will get after you unless you say it with lower rates."

Matt Sloan, who understands human nature and is himself very human, has lost no time in saying it with lower rates.

GOOD oil stocks, often recommended here, have finally begun to advance. They are likely to suffer least should the general market relapse. And by this time next year the industry should be on a much more satisfactory footing. Some progress is already being made.

COMPETITION for choice corner locations by chain stores is sending up real estate values in live cities. Once a chain store buys, the property is out of the market for good.

"Chain stores are warring among themselves for the best locations and paying top rent," says Joe Toplitzky, the hustling California real estate magnate. "The scramble is now keen, not only in Los Angeles, but in fast-growing neighboring cities in Southern California.

"Among the newer arrivals of chain buyers are F. and W. Grand, Schulte-United, J. J. Newberry, the Penny Company and others heretofore little heard of in the West. Such concerns take 99-year leases and erect their own buildings. The tremendous amount of advertising chain stores do helps all the surrounding property.

"I personally do not agree that chain stores hurt merchants who thoroughly know their business, as these chains pick only promising, fast-growing localities where the population is increasing so rapidly that there should be room for all of them."

PRESENT indications are that this country will enjoy a Merry Christmas.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Clearing house statement: Exchanges, $1,627,000,000; balances, $163,000,000; Federal Reserve Bank's credit balance, $137,000,000.

STOCK MARKET STARTS OUT STRONG

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—An aggressive display of strength characterized the opening of today's stock market. Coty opened with a block of 4,000 shares at 250, up 4 points and a new high record, and Radio opened with a block of 3,000 shares at 210, up 3½. International Telephone advanced 2½ points and initial gains of a point or more were recorded by American International, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, Johns Manville, Briggs, Greene, Cananea and First National Pictures, the last named touching a new high record.

Pool operators, presumably acting on the belief that the technical position of the market had been sufficiently corrected by the reaction earlier in the week, again bought stocks in large volume. Short covering also accounted for spirited rallies in a few specialties.

Chrysler again changed hands in large volume, advancing more than 2 points to a new high record at 120. National Dairy products opened with a block of 11,000 shares at 109½ and then moved up to 110½, up 5⅝ points and a new high record. Paramount-Famous-Lasky, Rock Island and Gillette Safety Razor also moved into new high ground.

Allied Chemical, General Motors, Commercial Investment Trust and Murray Corporation advanced 2 to 3 points before the end of the first half hour, and among the many issues to climb a point or more were National Cash Register, International Match preferred, National Supply, Republic Steel, Curtiss, Keith Albee, Sears, Roebuck and Gold Dust.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Influenced by adverse weather for the Australian wheat crop and by unfavorable labor conditions at Australian ports wheat prices here averaged higher early today. Meanwhile the corn market went downward, owing largely to liquidating sales of September delivery. Opening unchanged to ⅛c advance, hardened a little more and then underwent a setback, September dropping 3c from early top figures. Oats were steady. Provisions scored gains.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Steel Industry, Here In Best Condition Shown for Year and a Half—Aluminum Use Expands.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE steel industry has passed through a crisis. The developments were favorable for the patient and it is now doing well.

Advances of $1 to $2 a ton in prices have been established in bars, plates and shapes. Strength has also been shown in other steel lines in addition to the three basic products of the industry.

There have been few exceptions to the minimum of 1.90 cents a pound in contracts made for fourth quarter delivery of bars, plates and shapes. Higher levels have also been established on sheets.

The benefits of higher prices and increased production will be reflected in the earnings statements for the third quarter. The three month period will be the best of this year from an earnings standpoint. The fourth quarter will be started on an even more satisfactory basis, but the year-end slump in operations which usually takes place may counteract the benefit of higher prices.

INGOT production in this district remains at about 85 per cent of capacity. Increases have been shown recently in production of pipe and sheets. The former has resulted from greater oil drilling activity and the latter from the high rate of automobile production.

THE steel industry has regained most of the ground lost in prices in 1927. It has taken a year to overcome the effects of the price cutting tactics.

The steel industry has learned an expensive lesson. The costs may be measured in the poor earnings of most producers in the last six months of 1927 and the first three months of this year.

IT IS difficult to predict the outlook for 1929, but at least the year will be started without legacy of poor salesmanship in the preceding year which marred the start of 1928.

At the beginning of 1927 bars and shapes sold at 2 cents a pound and plates at 1.90 cents. A low point of 1.70 cents was reached in October, 1927. The present minimum of 1.90 cents represents real progres in selling steel on a sane price basis.

STRIP steel makers have also benefited to some extent by higher prices this year. Recently pig iron and scrap have also shown strength. Demand in practically all products has been active.

The steel industry, which is still the basis of Pittsburgh prosperity, is in the best condition shown for a year and a half.

THE scope of the aluminum industry is being steadily broadened. The public still thinks of kitchen utensils when aluminum is mentioned, but the application of this metal has progressed toward far greater things.

The Aluminum Company of America has started to build a 36-inch blooming mill and a 24-inch structural mill at Massena, N. Y. This will be the largest equipment in the world for rolling aluminum.

The structural mill will roll shapes up to 12 inches in width with a maximum length of 85 feet. A mill of that size proves that aluminum has been out of the tea pot class for some time.

The use of aluminum in street cars has been hampered by the lack of various sizes of shapes.

The new mill will open markets in which aluminum has been unable to compete in the past. Bridges and structural work on buildings may use aluminum soon.

NARROW PRICE CHANGES MARK SMALL TURN-OVER

Trading was moderately active and prices were steady to firm during the short session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

The rallying tendency in the New York market sustained the list here and was reflected in scattered buying orders in various industrial issues. American Vitrified Products was in mild demand at the opening and Central Ohio Steel Products, which shot up 3 points yesterday, was handled around the figures prevailing on the close last night.

Lone Star Gas recovered part of yesterday's decline, but the stock was quiet and trading was in small volume. Other fuels were quiet and quotations showed no changes from recently prevailing figures.

McKinney Manufacturing dropped back to 12½, a new low, but the decline was fractional and represents a recession of less than a point from the 1928 high. Only 100 shares were offered, but there were no takers at the previous price of $13 a share.

After a little activity in the first hour the list quieted down with prices holding practically unchanged. Fireproofing preferred and Standard Sanitary were handled in small lots and a sale of Carnegie Metals was recorded at 20½, up ¼ from last night's close.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass appeared on the board at 285 late in the session, but advanced quickly to 287. The previous close on the issue was 288.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 5 to 13 points under week-end realizing together with Southern and local selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and talk of a favorable weather outlook.

December sold off to 18.91c and March to 18.75c, or about 10 to 13 points below yesterday's closing quotations, but this decline seemed to attract a little more buying, which was attributed partly to covering for over the week-end and some trade demand for near months. The relative steadiness of the near positions helped the tone of later deliveries, with the market quiet and fairly steady at the end of the first hour, although prices were within a point or two of the lowest.

Private cables reported hedging and continental liquidation in Liverpool influenced by better weather reports from the South.

Bar Deserves Thanks For Court Reform Plan

A reform in the court procedure in Allegheny county is recommended by the Allegheny County Bar Association. The need for reorganization is based on a comparison between the Common Pleas courts of Allegheny and of Cuyahoga county, Ohio. This county is the seat of Cleveland and it compares to Allegheny in population and nature of cases handled in the courts. It is shown that a great many more cases are handled in the Ohio county than in Allegheny at an average cost per case less than one-fourth the cost here.

In 1927 the judges in Ohio disposed of an average of 1,170 cases each, while in Allegheny the cases disposed of averaged 642 per judge. The average cost per case in Ohio was $21.30; here, $89.38.

Members of our bar desire to speed up the local courts. "There are," the report states, "a good many cases which are kept on the trial list indefinitely because it is too easy to avoid a final determination."

The working hours of the courts, according to the report, show the Ohio judges on duty for longer periods. It is not recommended that hours here be extended except to permit more work up to Saturday noon. Visiting judges here, too, evidently were able to accomplish more than the local judges, the committee finding that "the outside judge" service was equivalent to the service rendered by 2.17 Allegheny county judges.

Certainly the showing is not at all to our credit, but the lawyers place some of the primary blame for the situation on themselves, stating "the difficult problem of any assignment room is and always will be that of engaged counsel." But they see no good reason why an attorney who persistently delays the transaction of court business should not be required to obtain assistance.

These matters are problems that affect not only those who do business with the courts but all, inasmuch as it touches our pocketbooks. The Bar Association is deserving of public thanks for its study of the situation and the recommendations it makes for speeding up the courts and cutting down the expense.

Sunday Roadside Marts And Golf—No Baseball

No doubt you are well acquainted with Havey Boyle, whose "Sidewalks of Pittsburgh" is a daily feature of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. You probably have enjoyed his amiable humor and the cheery way in which he comments on things coming within the scope of his observation. And possibly you have occasionally been struck by the fact that his writings often contain a lesson that we could profitably apply to ourselves. That was the case the other day and as there is possibility that you may have missed it, we recall it to your attention.

Commenting on the patronage accorded to roadside produce stands conducted by the farmers along our highways by Sunday motor tourists, he sees in the contact of the rural and the city people a means of help in abolishing the blue law.

The Sunday roadside fruit stands would be abolished entirely if the blue law were enforced strictly.

"In time, now that such Sunday activities are being tolerated as not sinful by the farm folk," comments Mr. Boyle, "the city people may be able to convince their neighbors of the farms that greater liberality in connection with Sunday activities will not make of the citizens libertines, nor cities modern Babylons."

The implication is that farmers who violate the blue law, as all of us must, because it is not possible to live and not violate them, will sympathize with city folks who desire a more liberal Sunday observance.

He further notes that it was not so long ago that thousands in Pittsburgh obtained innocent pleasure in playing and watching amateur and semi-professional baseball on Sunday.

"It seemed here," he wrote, "they were a happy and harmless lot, closer in their mood to righteousness than sinister evil. But there were complaints and the thing was done away with."

We are content to let Havey Boyle's words tell their own story and to point their own moral. Only one comment we add—the blue law never was made for the day of the automobile and the airplane and the radio. If we are consistent in keeping it, we should throw these away, together with all progress since 1794.

Every City a Seaport

Ireland Proves It.

Thanks to airplanes every city is a seaport, every wide field a harbor.

The Irish Free State plans an air line between Dublin and Paris. No need of Queenstown's fine harbor, no need to stop at Cherbourg. From Dublin or Paris, or to any other city in the world, ships of the air will sail to safe landings.

It makes a great difference in problems that hereafter will face military minds. Also a difference in problems that will confront the real estate mind.

For passenger traffic, Topeka, Kan., or Barstow on the Mojave Desert, with flat land all around, will possess as good a "harbor" as Liverpool or Marseilles.

What Will Bring Peace?

More Deadly Weapons.

Men build armor that no cannon can pierce, then bigger cannon to pierce that armor. Then stronger armor, and so it goes.

The Germans are testing an automatic radio warship steered by radio, all engines, pumps, steered by radio from a vessel accompanying it, torpedoes fired by radio. It will carry a cargo of cork to prevent sinking, and not a man will be on the ship.

That will be met by bomb-dropping airplanes, piloted by radio, no man in the plane. War eventually will become scientific, and absolutely deadly. Then it will end. Men, having "the drop" on each other, will hold their fire.

Good-by Robes and Beards

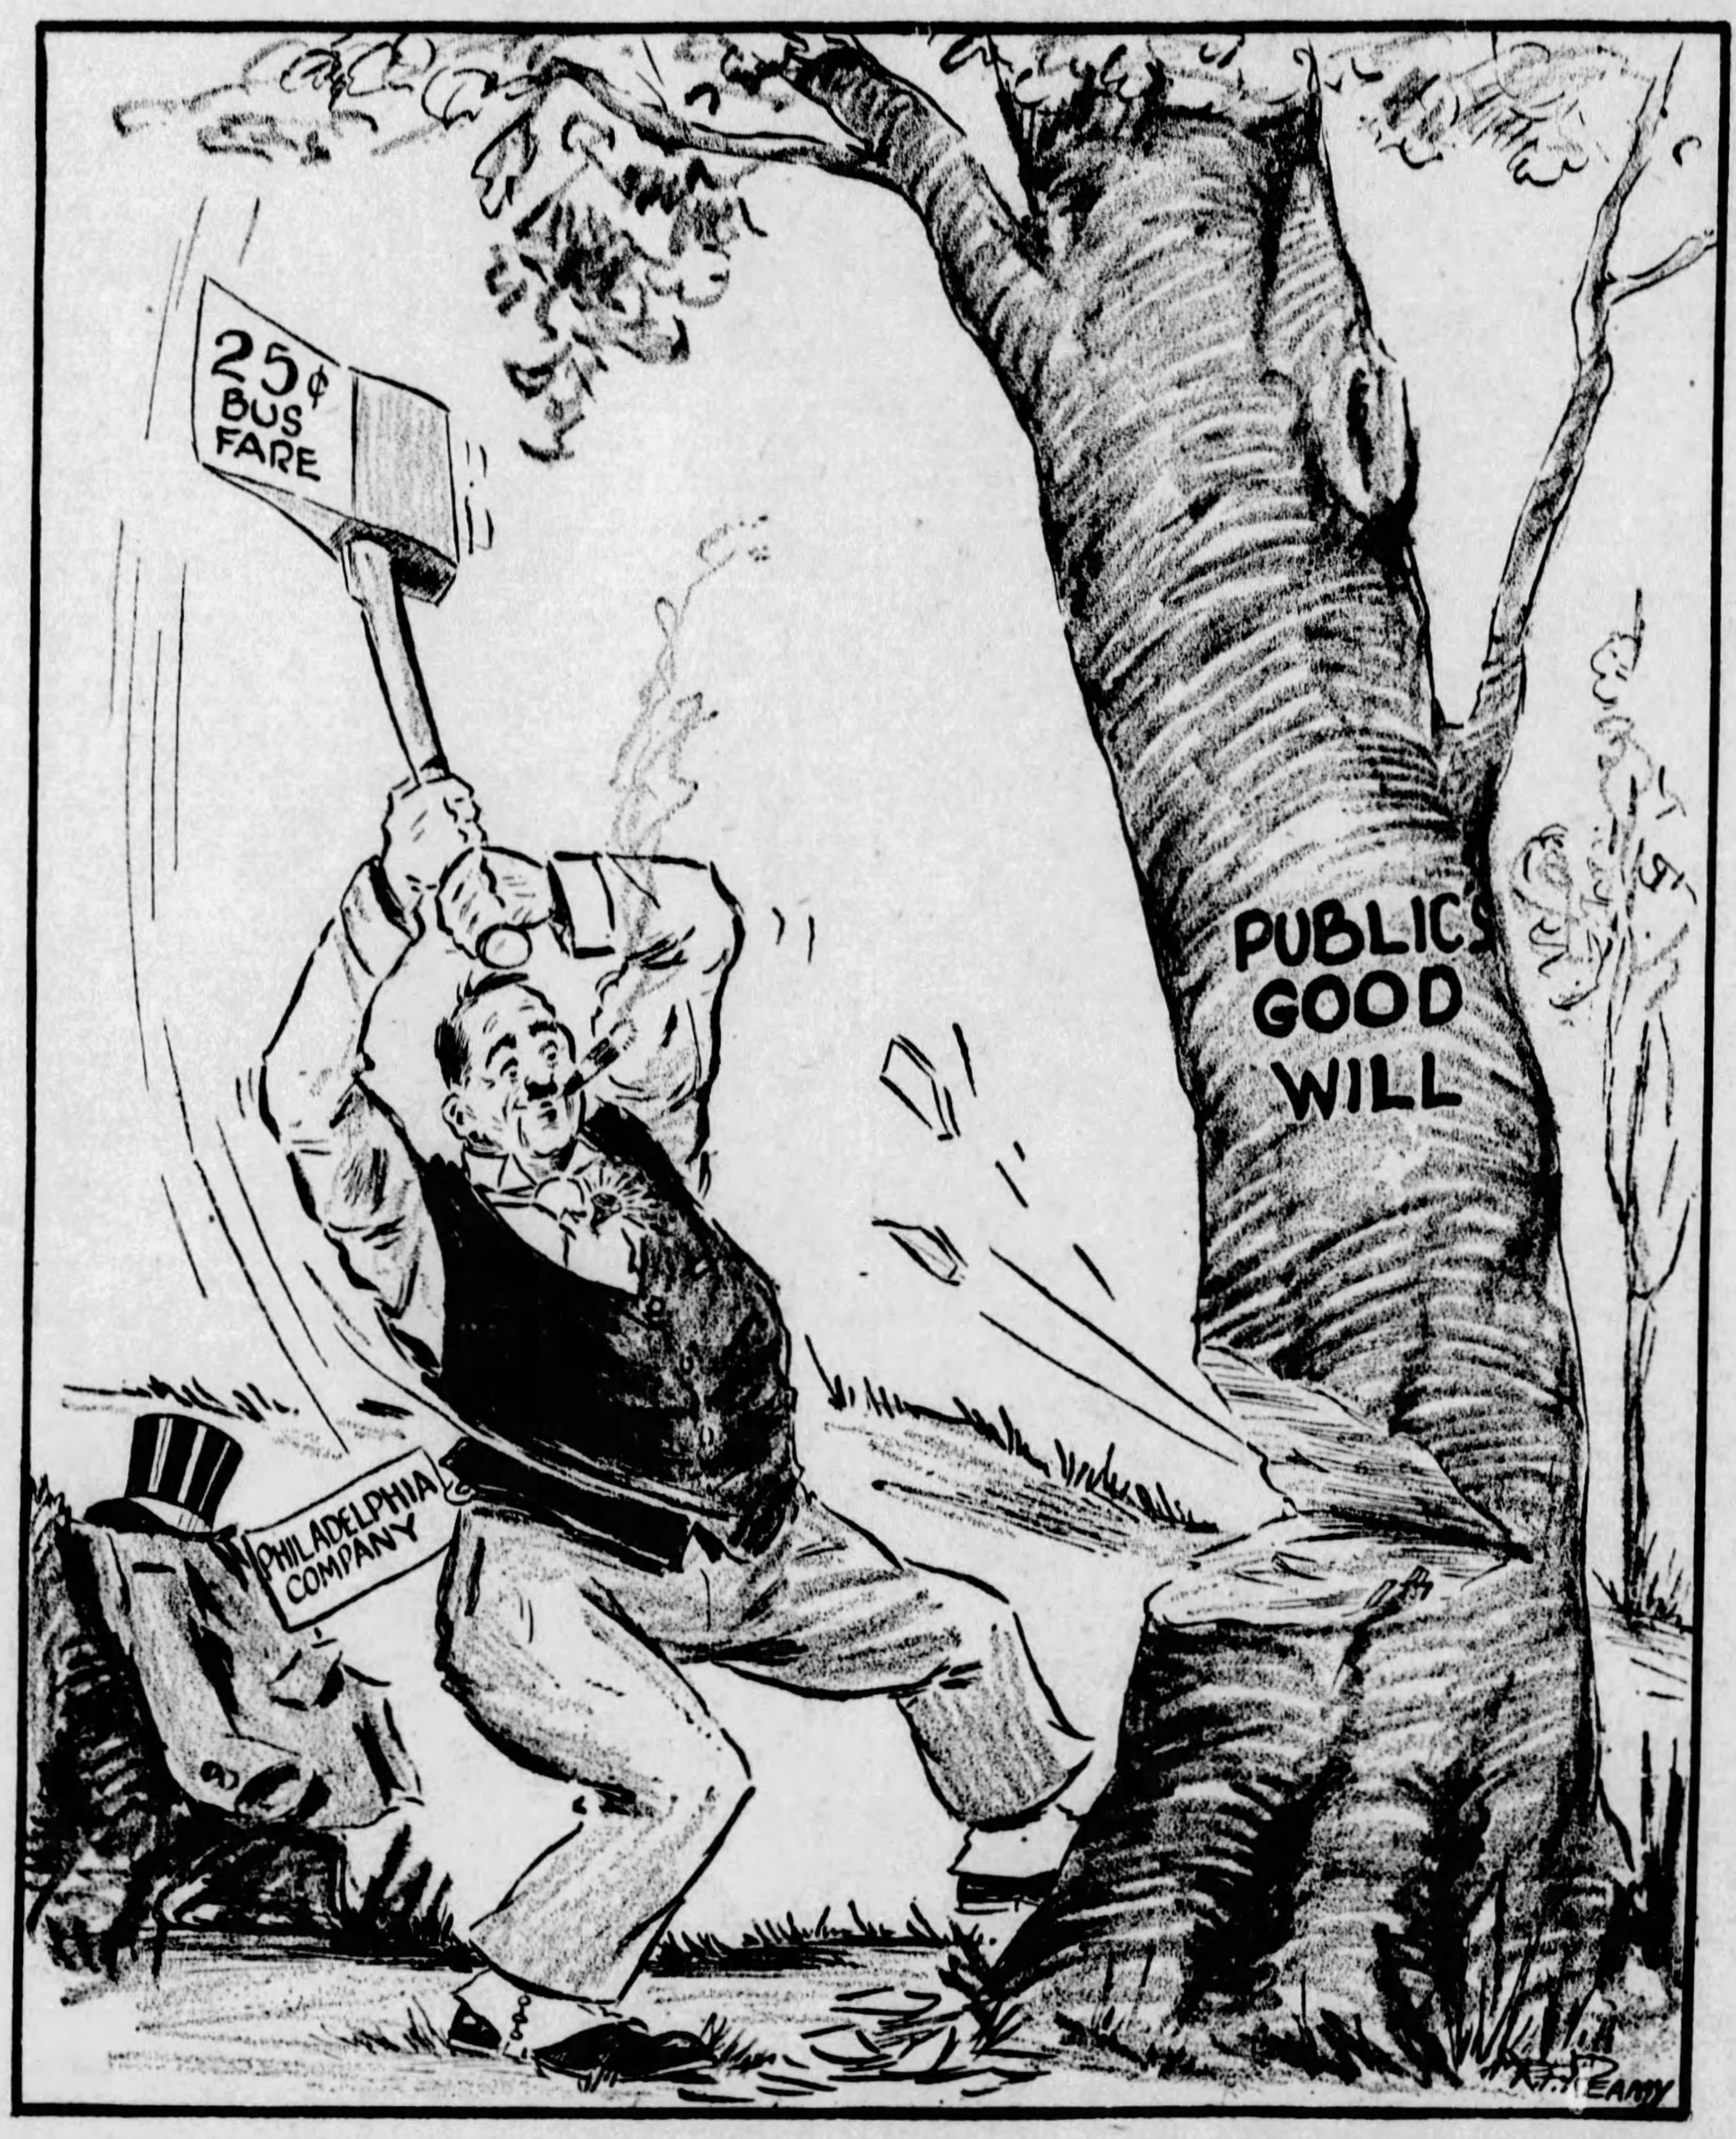
A King Travels.

The King of Afghanistan, having traveled in Europe, wants his country at least to LOOK European.

Home again, he tells his Parliament to wear frock coats instead of nice cool robes. He abolishes veils for women, and orders old men to cut off their beards, although the Mohammedan religion orders a beard.

When Peter the Great made the Russians cut their beards the old men saved their whiskers to be buried with them, to be shown on the Judgment Day as proof they once grew them.

Oh! Woodman, Spare That Tree!



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Welcome Venus!

THIS autumn and winter Venus is once more to adorn the evening sky. She is already visible to those who know when and where to look. Low in the southwest right after sunset, if the air is very clear, she may be seen poised on the horizon; but a trained eye is needed to perceive her now modest ray piercing through the glowing sundown sky. But she will not long remain thus inconspicuous, her beauty concealed by the bright curtain of sunset. She has been in the west since July 1, advancing slowly through the constellations Gemini, Cancer, Leo and Virgo, and is now in Virgo, a few degrees east of the brilliant star Spica, which she passed at the time of the autumn equinox.

She is temporarily accompanied by her small brother planet Mercury, and the two will be in conjunction on October 1, when Mercury will appear about three degrees south of his more brilliant sister. Mercury on that date will be about 96,600,000 miles from the earth and Venus nearly 140,000,000, but the superiority of the latter will be overwhelmingly evident, although Mercury will be brighter than all but a few of the greatest fixed stars.

From this time forward Venus, continually receding from the sun, will become more and more brilliant, until during the winter months she will attain that supreme stellar splendor which never fails at its maximum to impress the most careless spectator with mingled surprise and wonder that any "star" should appear so bright. At such times the light of Venus is intense enough to cast a distinct shadow, and she is clearly visible to the naked eye in full day, but of course one must know exactly where to look. However, Venus at her maximum brightness has often been accidently seen, gleaming like a diamond in the blue sky by some one carelessly glancing upward and happening to hit the right spot. It was thus, according to the legend, that the young Napoleon riding in the streets of Paris chanced to see Venus peering at him like a goddess, and felt his genius spurred with a sense of assured destiny.

Venus is that one of the sun's planetary family which most nearly resembles the earth in size, and she possesses an abundant atmosphere, most likely bearing much resemblance in composition. It is probably due to her atmosphere that Venus is so bright, while, at the same time, her surface features are almost indiscernible. In this respect she differs widely from Mars—the only other "extra-terrestrial" planet that has been supposed to be inhabited by creatures of an order more or less similar to the fauna of the earth.

The atmosphere of Venus is apparently very cloudy—as might, perhaps, be expected from the fact that the planet is subjected to about double the intensity of solar heat that falls upon the earth. This, of course, arises from her greater nearness to the sun. The distance from the sun is sixty-seven million miles; that of the earth ninety-three million. The intensity of light and heat varies inversely as the square of the distance.

In many ways Venus appears to be very favorably endowed for a habitable globe. Her abundance of solar radiation, tempered by special cloudiness; her gravitational force, not far inferior to that of the earth; the slight eccentricity of her orbit, preventing any considerable change in distance from the sun in the course of her year, and the apparent upright position of her axis of rotation, freeing her surface from seasonal changes like those that we experience—all of these things may be regarded as in one way or another desirable features from the point of view of habitability by intelligent beings. One peculiarity of doubtful effect is supposed to exist, viz a slow rotation of the planet on its axis, stretching out the days to a length of several months. But on this point observations differ, and further study is needed to reveal the facts.

A Lesson in Economics

NONE need be surprised that the Radio Commission finds itself unable to execute the will of Congress for uniform distribution of broadcasting.

It is doing its best, but the thing simply can't be done.

The big centers of population and wealth are bound to be also the centers of the best air programs, and people everywhere want the best.

Congress may think there are votes in trying to spread the radio evenly over fat and lean areas, but it will find that it isn't economics. And it is the economic laws which survive.

Inferiority Complex

DO you sometimes "cuss the luck" which made you less attractive than some others you know?

You are not pleased with your reflection in the mirror.

You see many defects in face and stature.

Then the thought comes that possibly you are inferior to those who have more regular features and a better physique.

Thinking thus, you lose faith and confidence in yourself.

And then your self-criticism becomes a serious matter.

Inferiority complex has made thousands fail to make good.

And it is such a foolish assumption.

If you have a good brain, properly used, that is the important thing.

Physical defects, facial blemishes are superficial things in comparison with the inner personality.

You may be as homely as the proverbial "mud fence," but if your soul and heart and mind are attractive it is bound to shine through, if you will let it.

It is the pleasing personality even in an unattractive exterior that makes and holds in the end. And it is the power to hold that counts.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Changeless

SOME dread the cruel might of time,
The flying, ruthless years;
But I, with confidence sublime,
Cast out these futile fears.

Full well I know time's lifted wings
Can never bear away
The joy of life's most lovely things,
For these defy decay.

The smile that waits on lips I love,
A friend's brave words of cheer,
Will faithful and unchanging prove
Through changeful year on year.

Time leaves its mark on lesser things;
But honor, truth and faith
Have sources in immortal springs,
And love knows naught of death.

Isn't It So?

Great Passages from the Bible

Micah's Prophecy of Christ's Birth

(Micah 5; 1-15)

NOW gather thyself in troops, O daughter of troops: he hath laid siege against us: they shall smite the judge of Israel with a rod upon the cheek.

But thou, Beth-lehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting.

Therefore will he give them up, until the time that she which travaileth hath brought forth: then the remnant of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel.

And he shall stand and feed in the strength of the Lord, in the majesty of the name of the Lord his God; and they shall abide: for now shall he be great unto the ends of the earth.

And this man shall be the peace, when the Assyrian shall come into our land: and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight principal men.

And they shall waste the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof: thus shall he deliver us from the Assyrian, when he cometh into our land, and when he treadeth within our borders.

And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people as a dew from the Lord, as the showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men.

And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver.

Thine hand shall be lifted up upon thine adversaries, and all thine enemies shall be cut off.

And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that I will cut off thy horses out of the midst of thee, and I will destroy thy chariots:

And I will cut off the cities of thy land, and throw down all thy strong holds:

And I will cut off witchcrafts out of thine hand; and thou shalt have no more soothsayers:

Thy graven images also will I cut off, and thy standing images out of the midst of thee, and thou shalt no more worship the work of thine hands.

And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: so will I destroy thy cities.

And I will execute vengeance in anger and fury upon the heathen, such as they have not heard.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THE little brother is one of the oldest institutions in the American home. I heard jokes about little brother before I ever heard one about the mother-in-law. And there seems to be just as many little brothers now as there ever was, so I suppose the jokes are still good, even though they are a little old.

This here one is about the little brother that always tried to be useful when there was any family problems to be discussed. His dad was looking around for his hat in the hall closet and was kind of angry because he was about to miss a car or something. The dad says, "Holy smoke! There was five hats here yesterday, and now there ain't one for me to wear. I can't imagine who misplaces my hats!"

Just then little Johnny spoke up kind of helpful.

"Dad, I reckon it was that beau of Lucille's that swiped your hats. I heard him talking about something like that when he was leaving last night, kind of late, and I just happened to be standing around here."

"What do you mean, Johnny? You seen him steal my hats?"

"No, dad, I didn't exactly see him steal anything. But I heard him say, kind of low like, just as he was going out the door, 'Say, Lucille, I've gotta steal just one more.'"

Happy Bachelor

HE: "I've come to a conclusion."

She: "What is it?"

"I realized today that I have been a bachelor for 88 years, and——"

"Oh, Jack, this is——"

"And I decided I'd had a jolly good time and that I'd keep it up."

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Gathering information about the decline or increasing popularity of hair bobbing is as difficult as picking up a ball of mercury with the fingers. Some say the craze has spent itself and others say it has just begun. Take your choice.

There is, however, a surprising increase of long hair among young girls. These are maids reared in the bob-haired era and consider long locks an adventure—something different. It is said 90 per cent of New York women between 17 and 40 are bobbed.

While many so-called flappers are permitting their hair to grow, there is an increasing number of elderly ladies having their heads shingled. Many bobbing parlors report a steady patronage of women past 70.

The advocates of bobbing are heartened when Mary Pickford was shorn of her lovely tresses which indicates chiefly she is through with wistful movie roles. And Ina Claire, who is a shrine for flapper worship, continues to wear short hair.

One thing seems certain. Transformations are just a passing fad, and the purple, green and orange wigs seen about Paris have not taken hold in Manhattan. One of the new effects in coiffure is a wind blown bob with a middle part down the back.

A musical show producer is to present a chorus of long-haired gals this season, believing its sheer oddity will attract customers. Many women keep their hair because of the objections of their husbands, who refuse to be converted to clipping. The old fashioned dodos.

That long hair these days actually attracts attention is indicated by a number of ladies eternally seeking the spotlight who have permitted their hair to grow. Hair bobbers say the upkeep for a smartly bobbed head is around $400 a year. We used to marry and go to Niagara Falls for less.

What surprises many of us doddering grannies around town is not the way older women bob their hair, but the way they dally with kitchen gin. At the opening of a roof garden this summer there were more than a dozen gray-haired matrons weaving about the dance floor all giggled-up, kittenish and everything. Still it is pretty tiresome to see young folk slaking all the mean thirsts.

One lady this same evening came into the reception room of the roof garden where there was a striking view of the city from the balcony. "I have lived in this hotel 16 years," she said, "and never knew before of such a view." The lady did not know she was looking from a new wing of the hotel just opened. That is New York. They can build a building next door and you may never notice it.

Reynolds had spent a fortune seeing the world, chiefly through the small end of a highball glass along the White Way. At 40, he learned his lesson and quit drinking for good. He decided to become a globe trotter—duck-bill cap, binoculars and everything—and has been a bird of passage since, writing two successful travel books and is now at work on the third. He is one of those rare cards who will sit up with a gang until dawn without drinking or smoking, and wearing the wise old expression of an owl. He had his headaches and is extremely happy to be merely a spectator.

Nordic Nonsense

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Elbert Hubbard said that he noticed that most chosen peoples chose themselves.

It is not only kings that imagine that, because they have certain advantages, God has selected them.

Every nation thinks that it is superior to all other nations.

The Chinese call themselves the sons of Heaven. The Japanese think their Emperor has descended from divinity. We all remember the outburst of German vanity in the late war.

We are all more or less tarred with the same stick. The English think they are the only people and some Americans imagine that Americans are better than anybody else.

I used to get a great deal of literature about Nordic supremacy, though why Nordic should be any better than the other kinds of people who were made by the same Creator I never could understand.

Prof. Robert D. McKenzie, of the University of Washington, recently advanced the theory that Nordic supremacy, particularly over the colored races, was not caused by difference in race, but by difference in culture or training. This was at the Institute of Politics in Williamstown.

An item in the New York morning papers of that day, giving the results of the marathon at the Olympic games, gave special point to his remarks.

The item said that the marathon in Holland requiring stamina and endurance, which heretofore have been regarded as Nordic attributes, had been won by a brown-skinned Algerian, with a dark-skinned Chilean second, and two yellow-skinned Japanese fourth and sixth, while the white race had to be content with third and fifth places.

The professor said that the assumption that peoples with superior technical culture are superior to peoples without, has no scientific validity.

The Nordic happened to be the first to use mechanical energy and by using the resources of this energy he got the lead over the rest of the world, and also got the big head.

There is no biological superiority of the white man. The Orientals, once they get the scientific spirit that dominates the West, will equal the white man in any kind of effort. The white man's advantage rests merely in the fact that he got the start.

This kind of talk will be a blow to those of us who think we are God's chosen people.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By LEOLA ALLARD.

HAVE you noticed that women never change their bridal array, but continue to be married in white satin and pearls with the same kind of boquets they carried years ago? They would like to change, but they think it might be bad luck, and the chances are great enough as is.

Women with kindly husbands to worry about their bills for them, complain of being weary. They should meet a little French dressmaker I know. She sews in a smart shop on Fifty-seventh street in New York all day, yes-ing women who are extremely fussy and difficult to please, then works till 7 finishing gowns that MUST go out for parties before she goes home, then takes more work home to do in the evening, so that she can make enough to take care of her mother and sick sister.

The very thought of her ought to make them ache.

A woman from Milwaukee writes me: "How did you get that way—talking about how badly wives treat husbands!"

You'd be surprised, lady. I got that way going to divorce and domestic courts for 11 years, and hearing from 20 to 30 cases every day, to say nothing of visiting the homes of front page women who shoot folks or push them off piers. It is easy to "get that way."

The wives who are kind and fair to husbands never resent stories about the other kind. It makes them feel so happy to think they aren't "that way."

In the year 1926 there were 361,736 marital slaves freed. Most of them have been recaptured. There is no market busier than the matrimonial market, and the odd thing about marriage is that those who try it once are never satisfied till they try it again, no matter how unhappy the first venture may have been.

"Men," says a woman writer, "are not as loyal as they used to be."

They are when they find their ideal, but it's difficult for a man to go completely coo-coo about a girl who is as good as a section boss on her own account, and only needs him for an escort.

"You irritate me," writes a Detroit woman. "Why should women stay at home and wait on the family when they hire servants?"

She continues: "If you had had matrimony and made your own living too, you would see the importance of women keeping their economic independence. I'll bet you are an old maid."

No, lady. I've had both, and I still contend that the happiest life for women is making home happy. Loving service to your family IS a man's sized job, if that is what the women want.

World Wonder

RECENTLY an American automobile manufacturer came out with a new car. Within a few weeks he was announcing that his car was on the road in 42 foreign countries.

Our automotive exports are one of the wonders of the world. Last year they totalled $400,000,000, and in our export list were exceeded only by raw cotton and petroleum products.

According to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce foreign purchases of our automobiles in 1927 were equivalent of the 1927 total sales of new cars in 20 of our States lumped together: Vermont, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Oregon and Nevada.
